Illusionist Craig Karges correctly guesses the real name of a student. He showed the power of the mind by reading the thoughts of the students. The performance was a hit among the audience, as they were amazed by the illusionist's skills. Craig Karges, his extraordinary performance, and his unique style of storytelling were appreciated by the audience.

The performance drew to a close with a standing ovation. Through a graceful bow and a standing ovation, Makeba's message resonated in the recital hall. "In an ideal world, peace would be more than a word," Makeba said. "It would represent justice, beauty, and truth."

Each one of us must play a role in creating a harmonious world for all to live in," Karges said. For more information on Craig Karges, his extraordinary illusions, or other performances in the future, visit his official Web site at www.craigkarges.com.
ACROSS

4. The surname of the first movie star, a woman.
6. The surname of the actor who sang in the first movie with sound, “The Jazz Singer.”
8. Becky Sharpe was the name of the first color movie, fashioned after a character in this author’s work.
12. The surname of “America’s Sweetheart.”
13. He’s a Yankee Doodle Dandy.
14. An adjective to describe Mommy Joan Crawford.
15. These Mexican workers became “the . . . of the earth,” defying the House Un-American Activities Committee.
17. You handle a sword and fence in the movies, so you do this.
18. Lillian Gish ventured into writing a script for this silent movie classic called “The _ _ _ _.”
20. Lillian Gish ventured into writing a script for this silent movie classic called “The _ _ _ _.”
21. This is the surname of the actor who played “Citizen Kane.”
22. The fat comedian who was drummed out of Hollywood following an infamous rape trial.
23. Humphrey Bogart told this man to “Play it again!”
24. In this first moving picture in a theater at Koster and Bials, only several minutes long, the women on the screen danced with these.
25. Chaplin’s most famous role.
26. The surname of the author who wrote the novel that inspired the movie “The Naked and the Dead.”

DOWN

1. The sleepy little suburb on the West Coast that became an international film mecca.
2. This was the destination in the screen’s first science fiction film, written by George Melies.
3. Edison was credited with using this at Koster and Bials to show the first moving images in a theater.
4. The surname of the first movie star, a woman.
5. Graumann and others have restored this theater.
6. The surname of the actor who sang in the first movie with sound, “The Jazz Singer.”
7. The first name of the actress who said, “Why don’t you come up and see me sometime?”
8. Becky Sharpe was the name of the first color movie, fashioned after a character in this author’s work.
9. The name of the sled in “Citizen Kane.”
10. The first name of the black actress portrayed as a confidant of Scarlet in “Gone With the Wind.”
11. The first name of the actress who played as a confidant of Scarlet in “Gone With the Wind.”
12. The surname of “America’s Sweetheart.”
13. He’s a Yankee Doodle Dandy.
14. An adjective to describe Mommy Joan Crawford.
15. These Mexican workers became “the . . . of the earth,” defying the House Un-American Activities Committee.
17. You handle a sword and fence in the movies, so you do this.
18. Lillian Gish ventured into writing a script for this silent movie classic called “The _ _ _ _.”
19. He likes to clown around with Curly and Crawford.
20. Lillian Gish ventured into writing a script for this silent movie classic called “The _ _ _ _.”
21. This is the surname of the actor who played “Citizen Kane.”
22. The fat comedian who was drummed out of Hollywood following an infamous rape trial.
23. Humphrey Bogart told this man to “Play it again!”
24. In this first moving picture in a theater at Koster and Bials, only several minutes long, the women on the screen danced with these.
25. Chaplin’s most famous role.
26. The surname of the author who wrote the novel that inspired the movie “The Naked and the Dead.”

Answers to last week’s winter wonderland puzzle

He said... She said...

What kind of movies would you like to see at the film festival?

Judy Elson  Curtis Junior
“Comedies. I need time to relax and get a laugh”

Janice Miners  Almonte, Ga. Junior
“I would like to see factual movies about the culture in the Middle East.”

Jake Hochser  Hershey Sophomore “l’d rather see a comedy.”

Valerie Reps  Kearney Junior “I want to see a comedy, for the entertainment.”
with movies such as “Moulin on a comeback to the screen, Phantom of the Opera” awaiting the day when “The like me have been anxiously ed that the hit musical by someday.

school and dreamed of play-my friend Roderick in high Omaha a few years ago. I
the book by Gaston Leroux
my own recording. I’ve read they got wise and bought me nearly wearing it out until sette tape of it as a child and tening to my parents’ cas-Owlna.

So obviously, I was excit-
t may be having problems or may no
- The site may be having problems or may no
- Make sure your spelling was correct.
- Have you tried an advanced search?

Schumacher’s ‘Phantom’ rocks my opera

“Phantom of the Opera” is a Phantom fanatic.

I’ll admit it. I’m a Phantom fanatic. I’m talking about “The Phantom of the Opera”, not that come book movie staring guy from “Titanic” in a skin-tight purple suit and a cheesy mask that couldn’t hide his identity from even the most naive of Lois Lanes.

I’ve loved “The Phantom of the Opera” ever since listening to my parents’ cassette tape of it as a child and earlier weating it out it until they get wise and bought me
my own recording. I’ve read
the book by Gaston Leroux
that started it all and seen a traveloguing the production of the show when it came to Omaha a few years ago. I even sang the title song with my mom and dad in the car the next day.

What is it about obsessive love that just seems so romantic? Ok, well the Phantom’s love is a little less romantic than, say, the love between the lead characters in “Othello”.

The Phantom of the Opera is a deformed man living in the wind-tunnel beneath the Paris Opera House in the 1870s. He kills in love with Christine, a beautiful young woman who is promised to become the next operas star due to the Phantom’s vocal training under the guise of Christine’s Angel of Music.

The problem is that Christine is in love with
Raoul, her childhood sweet-

The opening scene was cinematic triumph in itself,
as the broken down, dusty Opera House was trans-sformed into a thing of mag-ificence and sumptuous beauty as time moved backwards. Emmy Rossum was fantastic as Christine, Patrick Wilson was charmingly dandusm as Raoul

I was excited and count-
The problem is that
Christine is in love with
Raoul, her childhood sweet-

Tinystan may deal with the trash at UNK, but he’s no Oscar the Coward, an unlikely hero in a great dy

Girls, drag your guy or your girlfriends along to see it. It’s one of the best movies I’ve seen in while, and it’s definitely worth the extrageous price of the movie ticket.
abroad helps people to overcome prejudices from UNK," she said. She also

"I wanted to live outside America to see how it is." -Jordan Kuck

UNK student

"I could not do it without the help from Nohad Maloley," she said. Maloley said that working or studying abroad helps people to overcome prejudices against other countries and cultures. "Everybody thinks that the French are mean people. When I went over there, they were very nice," she said.

"Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." Kuck, who is still in contact with his friends in Germany, plans to go back soon. "It excited me that this request to support students in the school year of 2002-2003, to 17 students was granted." Ann Marie Harr, Study Abroad coordinator at UNK, said that studying or working abroad has many benefits for students. "It makes your life more colourful and adds depth to your education," she said. "The friendships you make broaden your social net-work."

"The work at the Down Home Ranch will help organize it, Stirtz agreed to offer another alternative spring break trip. "It excited me that this request to support a trip, and an offer to assist with the planning, came from one of our students," Stirtz said.

"Going on the alternative spring break break made me feel like I had made a difference and had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and famil-ly over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said. He had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said.

"I plan to work for a German winery over the summer," he said, his face brightening with excitement. "Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." The exchange program sponsored his plan to become a history professor teaching German history. Kuck also said that studying abroad makes you a stronger and more independent individual.

Maloley, a political science major, worked for the Overseas Building Operations. Among many other jobs, she helped the event coordinator in planing and organizing public affairs events. "This internship was a good idea for me," Maloley said. "Internships show you what you want to do with your life, but also what you do not want to do," UNK helped Maloley with financial aid. She also gave her 16 hours for her internship. "I could not do it without the help from Nohad Maloley," she said. Maloley said that working or studying abroad helps people to overcome prejudices against other countries and cultures. "Everybody thinks that the French are mean people. When I went over there, they were very nice," she said.

"Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." Kuck, who is still in contact with his friends in Germany, plans to go back soon. "It excited me that this request to support students in the school year of 2002-2003, to 17 students was granted." Ann Marie Harr, Study Abroad coordinator at UNK, said that studying or working abroad has many benefits for students. "It makes your life more colourful and adds depth to your education," she said. "The friendships you make broaden your social net-work."

"The work at the Down Home Ranch will help organize it, Stirtz agreed to offer another alternative spring break trip. "It excited me that this request to support a trip, and an offer to assist with the planning, came from one of our students," Stirtz said.

"Going on the alternative spring break break made me feel like I had made a difference and had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said. He had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said.

"I plan to work for a German winery over the summer," he said, his face brightening with excitement. "Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." The exchange program sponsored his plan to become a history professor teaching German history. Kuck also said that studying abroad makes you a stronger and more independent individual.

Maloley, a political science major, worked for the Overseas Building Operations. Among many other jobs, she helped the event coordinator in planing and organizing public affairs events. "This internship was a good idea for me," Maloley said. "Internships show you what you want to do with your life, but also what you do not want to do," UNK helped Maloley with financial aid. She also gave her 16 hours for her internship. "I could not do it without the help from Nohad Maloley," she said. Maloley said that working or studying abroad helps people to overcome prejudices against other countries and cultures. "Everybody thinks that the French are mean people. When I went over there, they were very nice," she said.

"Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." Kuck, who is still in contact with his friends in Germany, plans to go back soon. "It excited me that this request to support students in the school year of 2002-2003, to 17 students was granted." Ann Marie Harr, Study Abroad coordinator at UNK, said that studying or working abroad has many benefits for students. "It makes your life more colourful and adds depth to your education," she said. "The friendships you make broaden your social net-work."

"The work at the Down Home Ranch will help organize it, Stirtz agreed to offer another alternative spring break trip. "It excited me that this request to support a trip, and an offer to assist with the planning, came from one of our students," Stirtz said.

"Going on the alternative spring break break made me feel like I had made a difference and had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said. He had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said.

"I plan to work for a German winery over the summer," he said, his face brightening with excitement. "Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." The exchange program sponsored his plan to become a history professor teaching German history. Kuck also said that studying abroad makes you a stronger and more independent individual.

Maloley, a political science major, worked for the Overseas Building Operations. Among many other jobs, she helped the event coordinator in planing and organizing public affairs events. "This internship was a good idea for me," Maloley said. "Internships show you what you want to do with your life, but also what you do not want to do," UNK helped Maloley with financial aid. She also gave her 16 hours for her internship. "I could not do it without the help from Nohad Maloley," she said. Maloley said that working or studying abroad helps people to overcome prejudices against other countries and cultures. "Everybody thinks that the French are mean people. When I went over there, they were very nice," she said.

"Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." Kuck, who is still in contact with his friends in Germany, plans to go back soon. "It excited me that this request to support students in the school year of 2002-2003, to 17 students was granted." Ann Marie Harr, Study Abroad coordinator at UNK, said that studying or working abroad has many benefits for students. "It makes your life more colourful and adds depth to your education," she said. "The friendships you make broaden your social net-work."

"The work at the Down Home Ranch will help organize it, Stirtz agreed to offer another alternative spring break trip. "It excited me that this request to support a trip, and an offer to assist with the planning, came from one of our students," Stirtz said.

"Going on the alternative spring break break made me feel like I had made a difference and had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said. He had done something useful with my time, and because the trip was not a full work long I was still able to visit friends and family over the break," Horn, a Holdrege native, said.

"I plan to work for a German winery over the summer," he said, his face brightening with excitement. "Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." The exchange program sponsored his plan to become a history professor teaching German history. Kuck also said that studying abroad makes you a stronger and more independent individual.

Maloley, a political science major, worked for the Overseas Building Operations. Among many other jobs, she helped the event coordinator in planing and organizing public affairs events. "This internship was a good idea for me," Maloley said. "Internships show you what you want to do with your life, but also what you do not want to do," UNK helped Maloley with financial aid. She also gave her 16 hours for her internship. "I could not do it without the help from Nohad Maloley," she said. Maloley said that working or studying abroad helps people to overcome prejudices against other countries and cultures. "Everybody thinks that the French are mean people. When I went over there, they were very nice," she said.

"Deutscher Wein ist der beste," he added, translated as "German wine is the best." Kuck, who is still in contact with his friends in Germany, plans to go back soon. "It excited me that this request to support students in the school year of 2002-2003, to 17 students was granted." Ann Marie Harr, Study Abroad coordinator at UNK, said that studying or working abroad has many benefits for students. "It makes your life more colourful and adds depth to your education," she said. "The friendships you make broaden your social net-work."

"The work at the Down Home Ranch will help organize it, Stirtz agreed to offer another alternative spring break trip. "It excited me that this request to support a trip, and an offer to assist with the planning, came from one of our students," Stirtz said.
Antelope Staff Writer
Brittany Thalls
Fresh faces fill in the Department of Marketing at the University of Arizona.

Dr. Donna Alden came to the fall from the University of Colorado - Pennsylvania. She is an assistant professor at the University of Arizona.

“I am originally from Missouri and coming to Kearney brings me closer to my family,” Alden said. “She is an assistant professor in the Marketing Department at the University from a position in the University of Colorado.

“I saw opportunities at UNK which really excited me in addition to teaching,” Dr. Donna Alden Assistant Professor of Art Education.

“U of Arizona is a research university, and faculty is encouraged to be proactive in research. UNK puts more emphasis on undergraduate education,” Leung said. He will put his most memorable experience here at UNK so far is getting to know the students. He said it was a treat for him, since she is from Hong Kong and has been living in Arizona for the last five years.

Concerning the difference between the University of Arizona and UNK, Leung said that the biggest difference is in the atmosphere around campus.

“The College of Natural Resources and Human Sciences is expanding in Arizona for the last six years and was ready to move somewhere smaller,” he said. “This is a lot more like what I am used to. Everyone here has been very nice and welcoming.”

Dimock is a native of Rapid City, S.d., he said. “She is an assistant professor of Art Education and Educational Administration.

“UGA is a very good school, teaching often has to be your first priority. It is nice to teach at a school that lets you work on it and seeing the end result is very enjoyable,” Alden said.

The College of Natural Resources and Social Sciences added seven members to its team in the Chemistry, Statistics, Biology, Psychology, Computer Science, and Systems and Chemistry departments.

She is an assistant professor in the Marketing/MSIS here at UNK. Originally from Hong Kong, Leung earned her Ph.D. at the University of Arizona at Tucson. She said she was drawn to Nebraska because she is impressed by the friendly atmosphere.

“A lot of my research is in the area of how to choose a college,” Leung said. He will put his most memorable experience here at UNK so far is getting to know the students. He said it was a treat for him, since she is from Hong Kong and has been living in Arizona for the last five years. The roughly 50 new faculty and staff on campus, six are joining the College of Business and Technology in the Economics, Marketing, Industrial Technology and Accounting and Finance departments.

The Education Department grew by eight this year with faculty joining the departments of Teacher Education, Physical Education and Educational Administration.

Ten new members of UNK faculty joined the departments of Art and Art History, Music and Performing Arts, Communication and English.

The College of Natural Resources and Social Sciences added seven members to its team in the Chemistry, Statistics, Biology, Psychology, Computer Science, and Systems and Chemistry departments.

“I am originally from Missouri and coming to Kearney brings me closer to my family,” Alden said. “She is an assistant professor in the Marketing Department at the University from a position in the University of Colorado.

“I saw opportunities at UNK which really excited me in addition to teaching,” Dr. Donna Alden Assistant Professor of Art Education. 5

“U of Arizona is a research university, and faculty is encouraged to be proactive in research. UNK puts more emphasis on undergraduate education,” Leung said. He will put his most memorable experience here at UNK so far is getting to know the students. He said it was a treat for him, since she is from Hong Kong and has been living in Arizona for the last five years.

Concerning the difference between the University of Arizona and UNK, Leung said that the biggest difference is in the atmosphere around campus.

“The College of Natural Resources and Human Sciences is expanding in Arizona for the last six years and was ready to move somewhere smaller,” he said. “This is a lot more like what I am used to. Everyone here has been very nice and welcoming.”

Dimock is a native of Rapid City, S.d., he said. “She is an assistant professor of Art Education and Educational Administration.

“UGA is a very good school, teaching often has to be your first priority. It is nice to teach at a school that lets you work on it and seeing the end result is very enjoyable,” Alden said.

The College of Natural Resources and Social Sciences added seven members to its team in the Chemistry, Statistics, Biology, Psychology, Computer Science, and Systems and Chemistry departments.
The league’s season typically runs from early September to late March, which gives them a substantial amount of time away from home for family and some of their schoolwork. Platisha said a typical weekday for him goes as follows: “A typical day is a workout at the YMCA. Class at UNK from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Practice from 2:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Then dinner with my host family, then free time until curfew at 10 p.m.”

A missed curfew can mean serious things for a player or in terms of a contract. Platisha missed curfew one evening and was fined $50 and given a 5 p.m. curfew for the next four days. “The players have a curfew because they are minor. Itpretty quick.”

Despite the distance, the players adapt well to their ever-changing environments. J.P. Platisha, a Storm forward from Nebraska, said, “Most of the players have been doing this for long enough that they get used to it.”

Despite the distance, Platisha’s parents make their way south to watch their son through the year. Each player is paired with a host family. The league pays each family a set amount of money and in return the family is just that, a family. They eat, sleep, do laundry, and hang out with their host families. U.S. Hockey League players are not paid for their time with the league. The players rely on host families for basics.

The league and the Tri-City Storm are not without rules. All players entering the league are required to sign a contract which forbids the use of drugs, alcohol, tobacco and participating in any form of gambling. Curfews for the players are also enforced because of a strenuous daily routine.

UK had a second straight loss Saturday in Hays, Kan. The Fort Hays State Tigers defeated Kearney 66-52. The win puts the Tigers at 6-1 in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference and broke a tie with Kearney for second possession of second place in the East Division. The Tiger victory came without a lot of game time from Fort Hays leading scorer Ashlee Gustin. The sophomore forward sat out for most of the game due to foul trouble. Manning also led Kearney this game with a game-high and a UNK team-high of 18 points. Manning was 7 of 13 shooting from the field and also had a team-high of seven rebounds for the game. Platisha also scored in the double digit, with 16 total game points. The Storm is currently ranked fifth in the nation with a record of 12 and 2 and record at home. Although the Storm has only been in the league for five years, the team has developed a close relationship with their fans. Average Storm attendance is generally higher than any other league teams. This fact is not lost on the players. “Our fans are the best in the league,” Platisha said.

The Tri-City Storm, next home stint is against Green Bay Friday.

Our fans are the best in the league.

J.P. Platisha
Storm forward

When little boys grow up and envision their paths they never believed they would follow.

Twenty-two of these little boys have grown up and followed their paths to Kearney to play for the Tri-City Storm.

The Tri-City Storm is a developmental league for players who are basically playing for college scholarships or the opportunity to be drafted. The Storm is a member of the U.S. Hockey League which includes eleven other teams spanning the country.

The league is governed by USA Hockey and its members attract players from all over the United States, Canada and Europe. The 2004-2005 Storm team includes several players from Minnesota and Michigan. The players who come to the Storm are typically between 17-20 years of age and have left their homes for the first time. Most players average only one or two years in the league before they go back to school or move up into another level. One developmental league alum is an outstanding hockey university like Minnesota, Boston, and Michigan. Several league players have turned up in the National Hockey League playing for teams like the Chicago Blackhawks, Buffalo Sabres and St. Louis Blues.

The league’s season typically runs from early September to late March, which gives them a substantial amount of time away from home for family and some of their schoolwork. Platisha said a typical weekday for him goes as follows: “A typical day is a workout at the YMCA. Class at UNK from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Practice from 2:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Then dinner with my host family, then free time until curfew at 10 p.m.”

A missed curfew can mean serious things for a player or in terms of a contract. Platisha missed curfew one evening and was fined $50 and given a 5 p.m. curfew for the next four days. “The players have a curfew because they are minor. It pretty quick.”

Despite the distance, the players adapt well to their ever-changing environments. J.P. Platisha, a Storm forward from Nebraska, said, “Most of the players have been doing this for long enough that they get used to it.”

Despite the distance, Platisha’s parents make their way south to watch their son through the year. Each player is paired with a host family. The league pays each family a set amount of money and in return the family is just that, a family. They eat, sleep, do laundry, and hang out with their host families. U.S. Hockey League players are not paid for their time with the league. The players rely on host families for basics.

The league and the Tri-City Storm are not without rules. All players entering the league are required to sign a contract which forbids the use of drugs, alcohol, tobacco and participating in any form of gambling. Curfews for the players are also enforced because of a strenuous daily routine.

The Storm celebrates after a 3-0 victory over Sioux Falls last Saturday at the Kearney Events Center.
Men end road trip with loss

UNK Track and Field team dominated the Loper Open that took place on Saturday in the Cushing Coliseum. The Lopers captured 20 events and added two provisional attempts and qualifiers.

Ross Fellows, a Kearney freshman, had a personal best distance of 8.47-75 to capture first place in the triple jump and a spot on the NCAA provisional list. The distance of 8.47-75 is fourth best in the nation thus far. Fellows also won the long jump at a distance of 22.62-5, his second in as many events.

Elkhorn senior Lesky Crutcher, placed second in the 60-meter dash to earn a spot on the NCAA Championship list at 6.0. “My whole goal today was to qualify”, said Crutcher, “I always want to go higher, but I had some pretty great performances and I feel like I am doing well enough to qualify.”

Richie Ford, placed first in the shot put, won his third straight event to earn a spot on the NCAA Championship list. The shot put total of 66-3.80 is Ford’s personal best and best this year.

The UNK Track and Field team dominated the Loper Open that took place on Saturday in the Cushing Coliseum. The Lopers won the meet with a score of 27-9. The second half was UNK 6, UNO 30.

The open meet will begin on Saturday in the Cushing Coliseum. The Lopers capped the weekend with a win for UNK. The final score was UNK 6, UNO 30.

UNK went on to receive first place in the tournament. UNK bounced back, winning the next two matches against No. 7 Pittsburgh-Johnstown with a final score of 21-16, and Central Oklahoma with a final score of 21-15. With UNK’s single loss in Cleveland, the team’s new dual record is 9-3.

Caleb Young, a freshman from Perry, Okla., and Adam Keiswetter, a junior from Kearney, Neb., are back in the lineup after recovering from injuries.

Jordan is ranked No. 8 and Keiswetter is No. 1. Jordan wrestled all but one of his matches at the tournament.

Tourney: a freshman from Arlington, Texas, performed well in the tournament beating the No. 3, No. 6 and No. 4 wrestlers in the tournament.

San Antonio staff writer
Film festival reeling in cinema lovers

Mike Saniuk
Antelope Staff Writer

Proclaiming themselves as "Southerners by the grace of God," Th' Legendary Shack Shakers have taken the American South by storm. Their unique style of music combines rock 'n' roll, country, blues, rockabilly, punk, and country music; creating a new style of music combines rock 'n' roll, country, blues, rockabilly, punk, and country music; creating a new style of music.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones.

The band's sound is similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. From there it moves into the last part of the music, sound similar to the music of the Mighty Mighty Bosstones.