

theAntelope

University of Nebraska at Kearney

Run With It

Peking Acrobats amaze and awe audience

Performers jump, bend, twist, turn, balance, juggle, and bicycle across stage

BY HANNA HOTOVY
Antelope Staff

Speechless is how the Peking Acrobats left the majority of the audience on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 12, in the Health and Sports Center. The incredible feats that the acrobats accomplished showed a mind-boggling amount of strength, control and balance that, at times, seemed not humanly possible.

“Not only was the show amazing, it was unbelievable,” Alyssa Sage, a freshman from Valentine, Neb.,

said. “I couldn’t believe how the little girl could put her body into the positions that she did.” Sage’s friend, Jennifer Rathman, a freshman from Farwell, Neb., also commented. “I loved it! It

See Peking on page 3

Clockwise from left: The crowd gasps as the Peking acrobats place a member on top of spears. Photo By Erik O'Brien The Peking Acrobats display a show of strength as they lift each other up during the show. Photo By Hanbing Song A member of the Peking Acrobats balances on a high stack of chairs, which are standing on four wine bottles in the UNK Health and Sports Center. Photo By Erik O'Brien The Peking Acrobats show their skill by juggling hats and finally making a pyramid. Photo By Erik O'Brien Excitement goes through the crowd as the Peking Acrobats show their flexibility during the show. Photo By Hanbing Song

Smoking ban takes another step towards reality

BY LAURA LARSEN
Antelope Staff

A vote on Wednesday, Feb. 13 by state senators advanced legislative bill 395, a proposed statewide smoking ban, to final reading by a vote of 33-13. The proposal made by Kearney Senator Joel Johnson would prohibit smoking in all public places throughout Nebraska, providing for very few exceptions.

The measure was proposed last year but was stopped by Sen. Johnson when an opt-out clause for cities and counties was included. The opt-out would have allowed voters in cities and counties to override the statewide ban. Sen. Johnson has promised to kill this year’s version of the bill if opponents once again try to include the opt-out provision.

In the bill’s statement of intent, Sen. Johnson made it clear why he opposes allowing cities and counties to avoid enacting the ban.

“LB 395 is designed to protect employees and the public from the hazards of second hand smoke in all indoor worksites, including bars and restaurants,” Johnson said.

The proposal is modeled closely to the smoking ban adopted by city of Lincoln in January 2005.

According to a survey that was conducted nearly one year after the Lincoln ban had been enacted, 84 percent of adult respondents indicated that they go out to eat or go to the bars either the same amount or more frequently than they did before smoking was banned.

Lexington health education senior, Kyle Smith, agrees with the ban and believes the measure would make Nebraska bars and restaurants more enjoyable.

“It would be good for everyone. It’s not that hard to go outside to smoke for five minutes but it is hard to sit in a building that is full of smoke for a few hours,” Smith said.

Senior Wahoo teacher education student, Jonathan Lanik, thinks the statewide ban is long overdue.

“I’m surprised that more cities throughout Nebraska

Photo by Garrett Ritonya Freshman Kristin Nicoletti from Littleton, Col., takes a smoke break outside of her dorm building.

haven’t acted on implementing their own bans,” Lanik said. One of the bill’s major opponents is Senator Phil Erdman of Bayard. In a statement that Sen. Erdman released on Feb. 13, he is quoted as saying the proposed bill “is in horrible shape.”

In talking about his opponents Erdman said, “We can agree about the idea, but I cannot agree that the state needs to step in and pass LB 395.”

Sen. Erdman is expected to propose the opt-out amendment when the bill comes up for final reading.

Senior Red Cloud recreational studies major, Travis Kenny, agrees with Sen. Erdman that the statewide smoking ban would not be good for Nebraska. “The ban has the potential to force small-town bars and restaurants out of business by alienating the regulars who have smoked for years,” Kenny said.

Kenny also believes that this proposal is an example of the state infringing on an individual’s right to choose behavior.

The next step for LB 395 is final reading where senators will decide whether or not to advance to proposal to the governor for passage.

From there, it will be up to Governor Dave Heineman to either sign to the bill into law or veto the measure. If the bill receives the governor’s support, it will become effective statewide in 2009.

INDEX

the PRICE is Right

2 Freshman Amanda Hodges won a brand new car on the Price Is Right. Read the whole story on page two.

?

8 Can you solve the mystery? Determine what has been photographed for the Frank House Photo Contest and win prizes.

NEXT WEEK

Drama students start the semester out strong. The Gypsy's Curse starts this week. Watch for the story in next week's issue.

Coming soon to UNK:

Lost Boy of Sudan
Feb. 20 @ 7 p.m.
Ponderosa Room

The Gypsy's Curse
Feb. 20-23 @ 7:30 p.m.
Feb. 24 @ 2 p.m.
FAB - Studio Theater

Junior Criss Salinas chosen for Nebraska latino leadership award

BY KRISTEN BROCKMAN
Antelope Staff

Junior Criss Salinas has been named Outstanding Young Latino Leader of Nebraska.

The award, sponsored through Omaha Spanish newspapers, is given to Latinos; one high school student, one college student and one professional.

The student recipients must be pursuing higher education while being a leader and performing community service.

Salinas was anonymously nominated by someone who knows him.

Salinas, a Spanish Language major with an emphasis in ESL, is best recognized as the reigning UNK Homecoming king. He has also garnered an extensive range of activities and involvement during his time at UNK. His many leadership positions include Recruitment and Public Relations Chair for his fraternity, Sigma Lambda Beta International Fraternity, Inc. and working as a Student Diplomat for the Office of Undergraduate Admissions. He currently serves as director of student organizations for student government, works at the welcome desk in the student union and is a Chancellor’s Ambassador.

Salinas has also had a variety of service opportunities, both on campus and in the community. He served as an academic mentor for Student Support Services, is an active member of the Office of Multicultural Affairs and a teacher aid at Bryant Elementary.

An avid dancer, Salinas has become known for his penchant for dancing. He is planning to minor in dance and is never shy about sharing his abilities with others. Besides being a dancer and choreographer for the UNK dance program, he also spends his time teaching dance to children through the Arc of Buffalo County.

Salinas hopes that he can continue to make a positive impact on those people he interacts with everyday. “I see myself making a difference in my daily life, through my personality and what I do here at UNK,” Salinas said.

Photo by Kristen Brockman
Criss Salinas, a junior Spanish Language major from Schuyler, Neb. is pictured with his award for Outstanding Latino Leader of Nebraska.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT

for Hodge

BY MICHAEL PENNETTA
Antelope Staff

Amanda Hodge is your normal everyday girl. She goes to school, works and pays for her own things, but on Jan. 7, Amanda’s life changed, as she made it on the Price Is Right.

“My mom and I have always wanted to go on the Price Is Right. We had the opportunity so we decided to go,” freshman Amanda Hodge said.

A few things did surprise Hodge. “The studio is way smaller than I had expected, and before the show they played 70s retro music and all of us danced. It was great.”

Of course Hodge didn’t get right on stage at first. She had to guess the price of an item to get up there with Drew Carey. “I couldn’t believe they called my name. When you’re sitting in the crowd you think it won’t happen to you,” Hodge said.

“When I got up to the panel, it was hard because I just had to guess the price. But I went with the one my mom said, and hey, I got lucky.”

Hodge’s stepfather and her mom were in the crowd cheering her on as she played the range game. “It’s a game where you have to guess the price of the car, but the key is you have to get within $150 of the real price,” Hodge said.

Hodge was successful in guessing the correct price, and her prize, a 2008 Ford rior,” Hodge said. “I get the car in two weeks; they are going to send it to the Ford dealership here in Kearney.”

Hodge sold her old car to pay for the licensing and taxes on her new vehicle.

As far as her getting up on stage and meeting Drew Carey, Hodge loved it. “Everyone is so personable and nice, especially Drew,” Hodge said. It was hard for Hodge to keep her secret as the show aired just a couple of days ago.

“The show was filmed Jan. 7, so I had to keep all information confidential until the show aired. It was very hard to keep that a secret,” Hodge said.

Gold Torch Society offers chance for alumni mentoring, networking

BY KIM TOMJACK
Antelope Staff

It is the time of year again to apply to become a member of The Gold Torch Society.

The Gold Torch Society is a mentoring and networking organization for alumni and undergraduate women at the University of Nebraska at Kearney established by the UNK Alumni Association.

This society is exclusive to UNK and started in 2000 by Stephanie Vogel, a grad student Alumni House employee. It is comprised of 25 alumni women and 25 current UNK undergraduate women.

Alumni have the opportunity to share their knowledge and experience with the undergraduates, while both groups benefit from the chance to share and network with each other.

The undergraduates selected for the society get to select the mentor they would like to be paired with. The two keep in touch throughout the year via e-mail or phone. These mentors then help the

“This is a society where women can share with other women their successes.”

Michelle Widger
Program Director

Michelle Widger, director of the program, also sets up an annual meeting where all alumni and graduates meet at the Alumni House.

This meeting includes a welcome reception and banquet, all-day sessions and some networking. “This program shows undergrads that you can be successful and do what you want to do,” Widger said. “The alumni women we have are brilliant.”

The Gold Torch Society looks a number of things in candidates. Undergraduates must have a solid academic background and involvement on campus, submit a 200 word essay discussing the woman the applicant most admires, their professional ambitions and goals.

“This is a society where women can share with other women their successes,” Widger said.

Applications can be downloaded online at the Gold Torch homepage or picked up at the Alumni House.

BY JOSH KAUFMAN
Antelope Staff

For students who have money problems related to college tuition, scholarships totaling around $1 million may be the answer.

Luckily, applications are now available for UNK’s annual and endowed scholarships for over 200 different scholarships that will be awarded this year.

Last year, nearly 1,000 UNK students received scholarships totaling around $1 million.

Scholarships are available through the Business and Technology, Education, Fine Arts and Humanities, Natural and Social Sciences and Athletic Departments. Other miscellaneous scholarships are also available.

All currently enrolled students are eligible to receive scholarships.

Anne McConkey, Coordinator of Student Employment and Scholarships, emphasizes that applying is easy.

“There is just one universal application online, meaning only one application is needed to apply for all scholarships,” McConkey said.

“Applying will take un-

“There is just one universal application online, meaning only one application is needed to apply for all scholarships.”

Anne McConkey
Student Employment and Scholarships

HOW TO APPLY FOR UNK SCHOLARSHIPS

1. Go to the UNK homepage
2. Open WebEASI
3. Click on Financial Aid & Scholarships
4. Click on Annual & Endowed Scholarship
5. Log in with your Student ID & password
6. Complete the application & click Submit

Infographic by Josh Kaufman der an hour, and it’s an easy way to earn money that you don’t have to pay back.”

The money for the scholarships mostly comes from private donors.

Recipients for scholarships are chosen based on criteria set up by donors. Committees follow the criteria to match qualified students to scholarships.

The deadline to submit applications is midnight on Feb. 29.

“I strongly encourage all students to apply,” McConkey said.

LITTLE KING
Subs & Salads

FREE SUB!

Purchase any 6" or 12" Sub & Two Large Drinks and receive a sub of equal size for FREE!

3905 2nd Avenue

Free sub is of equal or lesser value. One per coupon. Not valid w/other offers expires 8-15-08.

DO YOU WANT A FUN PART-TIME JOB?

Add some excitement to your life, join America's largest DJ & Video Service. We provide the equipment, music and training. If you are friendly, energetic and own a vehicle, this well-paying job as a mobile DJ or camera operator is for you.

Complete Music®
301 Central Ave., Kearney
APPLY ONLINE - SINING BONUS
www.completemusic1.com (308)237-5247

Apply for The Gold Torch Society TODAY!

The Gold Torch Society – a mentoring/networking organization for alumni and undergraduate women – will initiate 25 new members this year. Those accepted will share a weekend on September 12-13 with top UNK Alumni women, including teachers, business owners, accountants, public relations directors, who will share their secrets for personal and professional success!

* Application Deadline: March 7th, 5 pm at the UNK Alumni House.

* For more information contact the Alumni Office at 865-8474

UNK Alumni House * 2222 9th Avenue * Kearney NE, 68845
www.unk.edu/alumni

Apply for the Outstanding Senior Award!

Student Alumni Foundation – is taking applications for its annual Outstanding Senior Award. The award recognizes seniors for scholarship, leadership and involvement in campus activities.

* Application Deadline: March 7th, 5 pm at the UNK Alumni House.

* For more information, contact the Alumni Office at 865-8474

Seniors!

UNK Alumni House * 2222 9th Avenue * Kearney NE, 68845
www.unk.edu/alumni

Collegiate Readership Program in pilot run

BY DANIEL APOLIUS
Antelope Staff

There's something about a newspaper that no other form of medium can touch. It might be the feel of the pages between the fingers, the layers of paper holding countless thoughts and opinions from around the world. Or maybe it's the smell of fresh ink over a cup of coffee on a blustery winter day.

Whatever draws a person to a newspaper, the Collegiate Readership Program will provide that paper.

The Readership Program spans across 425 colleges and universities including the Lincoln and Omaha campuses. The papers are delivered daily as part of a pilot program initiated by the student body government to keep students engaged in real world events.

So what are students saying about this program? Stacy Jons, a junior from Axtell majoring in Radiology said, "This is a great idea. I think it will expose students to a world outside of their own instead of just Kearney."

Carl Corder, a junior from Kearney majoring in math and physics said, "I don't think that I'll use it, but I would pay just so others could enjoy it."

The program will be funded from student fees and will be voted on in the first week of March.

Student body president, Amber Lewis said, "The price range will run between two and five dollars depending on the use. We are conscious of the amount that this will cost, and we don't want to discourage students through price."

Junior, Julieta Baptista, from Angola Africa, and marketing and nursing major said the program should succeed, "If it's accessible and cheap students will take advantage of it."

The USA TODAY Company uses its paper to promote the program and will stay as part of the selection, but doesn't limit the current choices to the New York Times, Omaha World Herald and the Kearney Hub.

In the last week of February, a survey will be administered to evaluate what newspapers to provide before it is voted on in the first week of March.

If you have any questions or comments regarding the Collegiate Readership Program, send an e-mail to unkspeaker@unk.edu or call (308) 865-8395.

COLLEGE DAZE

D-MILLER

Peking from page 1

was amazing and the talent that they showed was... wow! I especially liked the part where all the acrobats got onto one bike and managed to keep their balance," said Rathman.

The bike act was not the only act that showed how incredible the acrobats were. The night began with an act that featured the women acrobats along with the littlest acrobat, a young girl who was as agile as a piece of putty and as strong as an ox. The women acrobats appeared on the stage spinning four plates on top of long sticks in each hand.

Then, the young girl acrobat appeared and performed a very long routine of balancing on one arm while holding onto the top of a long pole, moving her body into positions that were unreal. At one point, she circled her feet all the way around her body and then rested them on top of her head.

The audience "oohed" and "ahhed" from their seats.

The acrobats continued to show one amazing act after another. The acts ranged from climbing up tall poles and flipping off, to spinning more than two dozen plates all at once during the "The Happy Chefs" act. They also balanced a huge tray of stacked wine glasses and candles on one acrobat's forehead as she climbed ladders.

The entire time, the audience was captivated by the show and showed their amazement and excitement through their cheering.

The audience was not only filled with the usual UNK student crowd, but several people from the Kearney community decided to get in on the action as well.

Mandi Miller, a sophomore from Hartington, Neb., said, "It's amazing that so many people showed up. It's great to see the Kearney community's support for events like this."

The Peking Acrobats also brought their Asian culture to the audience through the music, costumes and acts throughout the night. The traditional dragons, fans and costumes really brought out the Chinese culture that the Peking Acrobats intended to create.

Amber Kirkover, a sophomore from Shelton, Neb., said, "Not only was this entertaining, but it really opens our eyes to other cultures."

The sheer astonishment of the night was one that made people speechless, including Sage.

"It's indescribable. You just had to be here. It's beyond words."

Frontier hires marketing intern for Kearney office

COURTESY
Frontier Communications

Kearney, NE, Dec. 19, 2007-- UNK Senior Sonya Lange began this week as a Marketing Intern for Frontier Communications, Central Region. She will work jointly with the Central Region Marketing Team and the Midwest Operations Team as a resource for the whole region. Lange will focus on activities that benefit the communities we serve throughout the region and how we plan and execute our public relations and media activities. She is based in Kearney, Neb.

Lange is originally from Clarks, Neb., and attended high school in Fullerton. She plans to graduate in May 2008 with a bachelor's degree in business administration with an emphasis in marketing.

Lange is also active on the UNK campus. She is currently the Vice President of Programming for the American Marketing Association, which she has been a member for three years. While in this role, Lange has helped to increase the awareness of the AMA. She leads the organization and scheduling of area business speakers for the purpose of sharing information about various marketing strategies used throughout the community. "We look forward to Sonya joining the Frontier team as she helps tell the Frontier story to new and existing customers," said Chris McCorkendale, vice president of operations for Nebraska.

About Frontier

Frontier is part of Citizens Communications Company (NYSE: CZN), a full-service communications provider and one of the largest local exchange telephone companies in the country. Frontier offers telephone, television and Internet services, as well as wireless data, bundled offerings, ESPN360 streaming video, residential security solutions and specialized bundles for small businesses and home offices. Additional information about Frontier's products and services is available at www.frontieronline.com. For more information about Citizens Communications, visit www.czn.net

Right: A member of the Peking Acrobats balances wine glasses, cups and candles on her forehead in the UNK Health and Sports center. Photo By Erik O'Brien

Far Right: The crowd gasps as the Peking Acrobats ride dangerously close to the edge of the stage in a final display for the show last. Photo By Hanbing Song

Below: Laughs erupt from the crowd as the Peking Acrobats are seemingly playing fetch. Photo By Hanbing Song

theAntelope

SPRING 2008 STAFF

Lisa Elson
Editor

STAFF

Becci Osborne
Assistant Editor
Sharice Ward
Advertising Manager
Michelle Brummer
Asst. Advertising Manager
Jennifer Lemburg
Marketing Manager
Michelle Allen
Megan Gengenbach
Design Editors
Sarah Sweeney
News Editor
Klarissa Bellany
Copy Editor
Garrett Ritonya
Photo Editor
Kaitlyn Noone
Features Editor
Eric Korth
Sports Editor
Michael Adelman
Editorial Cartoonist
Bridget Correll
Web Manager
Judy Spivey
Business Manager
Terri Diffenderfer
Adviser

Any opinions expressed in columns, editorials, editorial cartoons or advertisements are the views of the individual writer, artist or advertiser and do not necessarily reflect the views of the University of Nebraska at Kearney, its employees or students, or the Antelope staff. Contributors to "Readers' Opinions" must include the name of the writer, as well as the writer's phone number, hometown and affiliation with the college. Phone numbers will not be printed but are necessary for verification. Deadline for publication is Monday at noon. Submissions past deadline will be printed in the following edition. The Antelope staff reserves the right to select letters for publication. Letters to be printed should be sent to:

Readers' Opinions
c/o the Antelope editor
Mitchell Center
University of Nebraska at Kearney
Kearney, NE 68848
Any of your questions, comments, concerns or suggestions should be sent to the address above.
Mitchell Center
News
(308) 865-8488
Advertising
(308) 865-8487
Fax
(308) 865-8708
Web site
<http://mcluhan.unk.edu/antelope>
E-mail
antelope@unk.edu
antelopeads@unk.edu

Ex-Loper spends summer in Lincoln

Former baseball star takes first step towards achieving life-long dream

BY GRIFFITH WATSON
Antelope Staff

Young children have big dreams. They dream of being an astronaut, a firefighter or a professional athlete. For a lot of UNK students, those childhood dreams are long lost fantasies. For one former UNK baseball player, these dreams are still very much alive and became a reality last summer.

After completing his eligibility for the UNK baseball team last spring, Cody Lusero, a senior BMIS and economics major from Papillion, played for the Lincoln Saltdogs of the American Association. One of the greatest seasons in UNK baseball history turned into a summer full of baseball for Lusero.

Lusero led the 2007 Lopers to the team’s first ever RMAC Tournament Championship. He batted .440 with 13 home runs and 68 runs batted in, all team highs. He compiled numerous awards while playing second base this past season, including RMAC Player of the Year and All-American honors.

Even though Lusero already had a summer internship, getting the chance to play professionally was an opportunity he couldn’t pass up. “It’s always been a goal of mine to play professional baseball,” Lusero said. “To have it be your job to show up at the yard every day, that’s pretty neat.” That opportunity came when the Lincoln Saltdogs offered him a roster spot for the 2007 season.

Upon returning from California after playing for UNK in its first ever appearance in an NCAA Regional, Lusero barely had time to unpack his bags before heading to Lincoln. “It was a pretty quick turnaround from playing at the regional in Los Angeles to being in Lincoln,” Lusero said.

Although Lusero was a standout at UNK, he had to make several adjustments when he joined the Saltdogs last summer. “At Kearney I was always the older player, a leader showing the way for younger players,” Lusero said. “In Lincoln, I was the youngest on the team learning form the older veterans.”

While being a rookie without a starting role and a position to call his own, Lusero had to play several different roles for the Saltdogs in order to find time on the playing field. He spent time at second base, third base and in the outfield. “I didn’t really care where I played as long as I could get into the lineup. Playing anywhere on the field was fine with me,” Lusero said.

Even though he didn’t get on the field every day,

Lusero said that playing for the Saltdogs was a great experience. “It was a great experience to be able to travel all summer and play baseball,” Lusero said.

With his first professional season under his belt, Lusero is looking forward to joining the Saltdogs again this summer. “This summer I’d like to work my way into a starting position and make the all-star game,” Lusero said.

After this summer, Lusero hopes to keep moving up in the ranks of professional baseball.

“Independent Leagues and the Lincoln Saltdogs are good at moving young players on to organized baseball. Hopefully this is a step for me on my way up,” Lusero said.

Lusero and the Saltdogs will kick off their season with a trip to Pensacola, Florida for their first game on May 8.

Courtesy Photos
Top: Former Loper second basemen, Cody Lusero, snags a ground ball at Haymarket Park during the 2006 season. Now Lusero spends his summers in Haymarket Park fielding balls in a Lincoln Saltdogs jersey.
Bottom left: Lusero helped lead the Lopers last year to 21-15 record in RMAC play and their first ever conference tournament championship. The Lopers also qualified for their first ever NCAA regional tournament.
Bottom right: Lusero earned several honors in his last year as a Loper. He was named RMAC Player of the Year and also received All-American honors.

Lopers look to bring high heat

BY VICKI ALTHAGE
Antelope Staff

Lady Lopers look to four returning first team all-state picks to fuel their 2008 season

The Loper softball team prepares to launch into their 2008 season this weekend, rated second in the East Division, and fourth overall in the RMAC Preseason coach’s poll.

The Lopers cleaned-up in the preseason polls, earning both team and individual honors. Senior Amanda Bell, from Ft. Collins, Colo., was the unanimous pick for Preseason Pitcher of the Year.

Last spring, in her first season in blue and gold, Bell went 19-7 with a 2.39 ERA to earn RMAC Pitcher of the Year honors. She also fanned 157 batters and walked just 33 while holding opponents to a .224 batting average

Also making an appearance in the preseason picks were senior catcher, Molly Langerak from Erie, Colo., and junior designated player Ashley Guyle from Mead.

Langerak, a fellow transfer from Colby C.C. (Kans.), fueled the Lopers offensive last spring in several categories. Earning All-RMAC and All-South Central Region honors, she batted .406 with 12 homers and 54 RBI’s.

Behind the plate, Langerak had a .993 fielding percentage and threw out seven runners. Guyle also proves to be a returning asset for the Lopers in 2008 after finishing the 2007 season batting .318 with seven homers and 25 RBI’s.

As a pitcher and right fielder, Guyle ranks ninth in school history in career home runs (17). Guyle rounded out ’07 with a 5.83 ERA making 18 appearances on the mound.

The Lopers return four Omaha World Herald Division II all-state first team picks from the 2007 season. Bell returns along side Langerak and Guyle, with senior outfielder, Skye Wakefield of Bellevue, to improve their 28-17 (22-13 RMAC) record in 2008.

The Lopers hope that the preseason honored, pitcher catcher duo can make the 2007 magic continue into their 2008 season.

“Having the pitcher of the year and a pre-season all conference catcher and designated hitter can’t hurt a team. With these players leading the team and the players we have behind us, I think we can be a force to be reckoned with,” Guyle said.

The Lopers continue to set their goals high in conference play and expect to push the limits in ’08. “Our team’s goal is always to win the conference tournament but this year we are expecting to go further. We hope to host the conference tournament and be successful in the regional. We want to be the team everyone respects and is afraid to play,” Guyle said.

The Lady Lopers softball team is set to kick off their 2008 season next weekend at the Holiday Inn Lady Buff Invitational in Amarillo, Texas.

Semi-finals provide drama, grease

McDonald’s wins nail-biter against Amigo’s to reach final round

BY GRIFFITH WATSON
Antelope Staff

The Fast-Food Challenge is down to the semi-finals and only four restaurants remain. Those still left are McDonald’s, Amigos, Wendy’s and Sonic.

McDonald’s and Wendy’s breezed through their first round matchups while both Sonic and Amigos had to pull off upsets to make it this far. With only these four left standing, rankings don’t matter anymore as it comes down to the ability to satisfy the judges.

The judges again are Kyle Smith, a junior from Blair, Cody Lusero, a senior from Papillion, and Cole Archer, a senior from Kearney.

In the past, Smith has voted on the ability of a menu to offer him variety. Archer has consistently been inconsistent in his voting patterns. Nobody really cares what Lusero votes for, as long as he actually votes to break any ties.

The first semi-final matchup pits Wendy’s against America’s Drive-in, Sonic. After Smith had voted for both Sonic and Wendy’s and the variety of their menus, this was a test for the first judge. “Both menus give me a lot of options to choose from,” Smith said. “But Wendy’s is just cheaper. And greasier. And I like that.”

Lusero also voted for Wendy’s. Lusero had little to say about why he voted the way he did. “Don’t worry about it. I voted for Wendy’s, that’s all you need to know,” Lusero said. With the third vote being obsolete and Wendy’s already the winner, Archer just followed suit and made it a clean sweep for Wendy’s. “All I have to say is that Wendy’s is taking to the endzone,” Archer said.

The last semi-final matched up McDonald’s against Amigos. McDonald’s brings in its formidable dollar menu while Amigos will rely on its local flavor.

“Even though I love Amigos I have to vote for McDonald’s,” Smith said. “Those double cheeses and McChickens are just too good late at night.”

With Smith voting for McDonald’s, Lusero rebounded with a vote for Amigos. “Amigos won an award once, I think it was for best food ever made,” Lusero said.

With the first two judges divided, Archer had the responsibility of deciding who would move on to the finals.

“Double cheeseburgers from McDonald’s fit better in my pockets,” Archer said. “When I’m end-zone dancing and doing the Super Bowl Shuffle, I don’t want taco meat getting everywhere in my pants.”

Archer’s crucial vote sent Ronald and his boys past Amigos and in to the finals against Wendy’s. With only one showdown remaining, six have been sent packing as the last two are set to square off. Who will take home the proverbial crown? Will it be the creepy clown Ronald McDonald and the Hamburglar that get to celebrate total victory? Or will Wendy’s prevail again and take home the championship? Check back next week to find out who the winner of this completely pointless competition is.

Memorable season for Loper trio

Hinkley, Mathis and Meads all reach 1,000 point mark this year

BY AMANDA BELL
Antelope Staff

After being projected to win the RMAC in the pre-season polls and after reaching 20 wins in the regular season for the fifteenth time in school history, what more could the women’s team add to their already stellar season? How about the fact that three members of the UNK Women’s Basketball team have hit the 1,000 point mark in their careers, an unprecedented accomplishment.

Seniors Amy Mathis and Melissa Hinkley, and junior Jade Meads have all played huge roles in the success of the Lopers this year.

“The 1,000 point thing didn’t even cross my mind until Jade did it,” Mathis said.

“It’s an honor individually to do something like this, but it means more now that we get to share the experience with each other.” Mathis, a Millard North graduate out of Omaha, averages 18.1 points a game, and leads the RMAC in scoring and in three point shooting percentage. This forward also leads the conference in free-throw percentage, and is fourth in rebounds. She has been named player of the week in the eastern division of the RMAC three times, and was announced all-academic player of the year. Hinkley, a Lincoln East graduate from Lincoln, also playing forward, averages 11.3 points a game and is fifth in the conference in steals and offensive rebounds. Hinkley was named player of the week Dec. 3, 2007.

“I don’t even really care about the awards. Most of the time I don’t even know until someone comes up and congratulates me,” Hinkley said. “As long as we’re winning, I’m happy.”

Meads is the rarity of these three. While the other two are competing in their final season, Meads is only a junior. A graduate of Elm Creek High School, from Elm Creek, this guard is averaging 15.1 points a game. She ranks eighth in scoring and fourteenth in offensive rebounds. Meads was named player of the week for the week of Dec. 31, 2007.

“Even though I’m only a junior, I try to be one of the go-to people when it comes to leadership responsibility. Our seniors do a great job of leading us, but I try to be a leader too,” Meads said.

Although these three women have accomplished a great feat, it is nothing compared to what lies ahead of them.

“I am just trying to finish this season playing with more intensity,” Mathis said.

“I’m staying in the gym after practice quite a bit perfecting my shot. By this time in the season, everyone knows that I drive, so I’ve really been working on my shot,” Meads said.

Hinkley is not changing her game much to prepare for the final stretch of the Lopers season, but she does remind herself and her teammates every game that this season their goal is to “bring it home.”

The Lopers play again Feb. 21 at 6 p.m. against Regis. They also play Feb. 23 against University of Colorado at Colorado Springs at 2 p.m. The first round of the RMAC tournament begins March 1.

Photos courtesy of Garrett Ritonya and Peter Yazvac
The 2007-2008 women’s basketball season has been one of much excitement. Three Lopers, Jade Meads (left), Melissa Hinkley (center) and Amy Mathis (right), made their way into UNK history by reaching the 1,000 career point milestone.

Graphic by Eric Korth

Track team looks to put the finishing touches on a very successful season

BY SCOTT LEVY
Antelope Staff

With the indoor season coming to the close, the men and women’s track and field team has seen its fair share of successes.

The track team has had 11 meets so far this year, and has many qualifiers for the NCAA Division II Indoor Championships.

“The team has been doing well this season, and we are a more well rounded team this year than we were in the past,” Seth Yount said. Yount is a senior from Fremont, Neb., participates in long jump, triple jump, and high jump for the UNK Lopers.

The team has had several qualifiers for the Division II Championships. The men were picked third and the women forth in the RMAC preseason poll.

The Lopers won 13 events in the first indoor meet, and that sprinted them in the right direction for the rest of the season.

Senior Ross Fellows, from Kearney, lead the Lopers at Ward Haylett Invite in early January, then the team had ten event wins at their first home invite, setting the stage for the RMAC Indoor Championships.

“With the team winning at least ten events or more in the last two indoor meets, it just means that the team will be entering the RMAC Championships will high hopes and ready to compete,” Yount said.

The men’s team was recently ranked No. 15 in the National Power Rankings with the women’s team ranked at No. 20.

The Lopers won ten events and qualified more athletes at the Chadron State Invite on Feb. 9, 2008. They also won 13 events in their last home meet of the year, which was held in Cushing on Feb. 15, 2008.

The Lopers have high hopes going into the RMAC Indoor Championships, held in Cushing Feb. 29 and 30.

“We hope to qualify more of our runners, jumpers and throwers for the Division II Championships. We are on a roll now and just want to keep the momentum up for the last meet before the RMAC Championships,” Yount said.

The Lopers have one more meet, the Prairie Wolf Invite Feb. 22, then the RMAC Championships at home.

Lopers win 13 events at UNK All-Comer meet

Junior Spencer Huff leaps out of the building and into the UNK record books

BY PETER YAZVAC
Guest Writer

HUFF

Junior Spencer Huff had a big leap and the Nebraska-Kearney track and field team won 13 events (seven men, six women) Friday night at the UNK All-Comer meet in Cushing Coliseum.

The non-team scoring event included Chadron State, Fort Hays State, Friends U. (Kans.), Bethany College (Kans.), Sterling College (Kans.), Tabor College (Kans.) and Pratt C.C. (Kans.).

Huff (York) had the highlight of the night as he went 24-2.25 to win the long jump. Already an automatic qualifier for the NCAA Championships thanks to a 23-11.75 back in December, Huff’s leap is the second best in school history and should place him in the top three nationally.

Kurt Christiansen holds the UNK mark as he went 24-6 back in 1974.

Also in this event, senior Ross Fellows went 23-4.50 to provisionally qualify for the NCAA’s. Already this year, Fellows has provisionally qualified in the triple jump. He won that event tonight with a solid leap of 48-4.

Adding their names to the NCAA list were Alliance senior Andy Brown in the pole vault (15-5.50) and Shelton freshman Jake Wissing in the 200 meter dash (22.20). Brown placed first in his event with Wissing coming in second and being one of six Lopers to finish in the top 10.

Wissing also won the 55 meter dash in a time of 6.46 seconds.

On the women’s side, Kearney junior Kelli Dring and Palmer freshman Julie Davis had season-best efforts that should help them move up the national list.

Dring went 19-0 to win the long jump while Davis placed second in the shot put with a toss of 45-3.50.

Davis also won the weight throw (50-8.25) with Dring winning the 55 hurdles (8.51) and running on the 4 x 400 relay team that placed third.

Also for the UNK women, seniors Michelle Dill (5:12.49) and Jacquelyn Dibbern went 1-2 in the mile, junior Kaci Lickteig won at 3,000 meters (10:39.31), senior Shayna Fruit won the high jump (5-3) and freshman Jessie Golden was a very close second (8.52) to Dring in the hurdles.

Back on the men’s side, York senior Darrel Branz helped the 4 x 400 relay team (3:28.34) win while also placing second in the 55 hurdles in a season-best time of 7.78 seconds.

Finally, Kansas sophomore Brandon Karlin won the weight throw (58-4.50) and Ogallala freshman Tanner Fruit was victorious in the mile (4:35.22).

UNK finishes up the regular season next weekend at the Prairie Wolf Invite in Lincoln.

WEEKEND STAYS!

— Earn up to $835 —

- Healthy men & women
- 19 to 55 years of age
- Non-smokers
- Assist medical research

Ask about our referral program!

CALL TODAY at 1-800-609-7297
621 Rose Street, Lincoln • www.mdsparticipants.com

MDS
Pharma Services

Together we're making lives better.

Sandhills Publishing®

If you're looking for a challenging position with a growing and stable company, be sure to check out the Sandhills Publishing booth at the UNK Career Fair on Tuesday, February 26th!

Career Opportunities in:
Software Development
Marketing
Sales
Ag Sales

If you are interested in our opportunities, please visit with our recruiters at the fair, or apply for any position by filling out an application at www.sandhills.com/career.

Think Pink

Join the cause to fight breast cancer by wearing pink to Thursday night’s women’s basketball game against Regis University.

Admission is free to all fans wearing pink to the game. Each fan wearing pink will also receive a commemorative “Think Pink” pin and a free bag of popcorn courtesy of Runza.

Through the “Think Pink” program, university athletic teams have helped raise more than $250,000 for the Komen Foundation.

Thursday, Feb. 21
6:00 p.m.
Health and Sports Center
Admission is free to those in pink

Want breakfast or brunch?

Kearney has Perkins, Tex’s Cafe, but few others

BY JARED HOFF
Antelope Staff

Thinking about going out for some bacon and eggs? How about some pancakes or french toast? Well, if variety is what you’re looking for, Kearney definitely falls short in the breakfast restaurant category.

Perkins restaurant on Second Avenue in Kearney is the only big franchise restaurant that serves breakfast all day. This means waiting in line for 30-45 minutes to eat, unless you are a night owl and go in at 2 a.m.

If you don’t like the way Perkins scrambles their eggs or brews their coffee, too bad. Locally owned and virtually unknown Tex’s Café in downtown Kearney is the only place that resembles competition for Perkins.

Hopefully, this limited selection will end soon and Kearney city administrators will work on bringing a Denny’s, Country Kitchen or IHOP to Kearney.

Freshman business major, Gordon Collins from Pierce, says the lack of options other than Perkins is depressing. He also has yet to try Tex’s Café.

“When I go to Lincoln, I love going to get the pancake special at IHOP,” Collins said.

“Yeah, sure, Perkins is an all right option to have, especially late at night or early morning hours with some friends. But as a Sunday morning breakfast spot, it’s a terrible wait for average food.”

Many students hit Perkins up for various reasons. It could be an early morning stop after the bars for some, or a quiet place to study and drink a cup of coffee for others.

The issue of concern for many is that Perkins has an inadequate menu selection. Junior Robbie James of Plattsmouth isn’t a big fan of Perkins but will eat there because of the obvious lack of options.

“I’ll go there and get that Tremendous Twelve you know, but more times than not I have walked away from Perkins saying, ‘that food was incredibly bland,’” James said.

Tex’s Café is located downtown on the bricks in Kearney, just east of Copperfield’s bar. It has slowly gained a favorable reputation among UNK students because of its wonderful homemade recipes and low-key setting.

Tex’s is open every day of the week except Sundays. It features excellent service in the old-fashioned café setting. Will O’Roberts, a sophomore physical education major from Norman, Okla., prefers Tex’s over Perkins.

“The best part about Tex’s is the service. They are incredibly friendly. For example, when I was there cramming for a final test last semester, the lady just brought over the whole pot of coffee for me. Perkins has never done that, at least not for me,” O’Roberts said.

Perkins does have some good food, and it is nice to have the restaurant here— we could have nothing at all.

But it is time to add some competition here in Kearney. That way, if the line is bad on Sunday morning at Perkins, you and friends or family can drive over to Denny’s.

This is a move that is long overdue in Kearney and needs to happen soon since the community continues to grow.

What do YOU eat for breakfast?

Photo by Mark Hayden
Oscar Arias, sophomore architecture student from Kearney. “I usually grab a Pop-Tart or a bowl of cereal before I head out the door.”

Photo by Mark Hayden
Carter Blauvelt, senior history major from Scottsbluff. “I hardly ever eat breakfast.”

Health experts have been saying for years that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. Are you robbing yourself of the nutrients that your body needs after a long nights rest? Breakfast helps kick start your metabolism and helps you stay focused throughout the day.

Try eating a few scrambled eggs; they are easy to make and high in protein. A little fruit doesn’t hurt either. It is a great source of energy. Even if it is a quick bowl of cereal or a granola bar, your body will like you a lot more and you might even find yourself not slacking as much in that dreaded calculus class.

Photo by Mark Hayden
Matt Cass, sophomore political science major from Tekamah. “I had a pop and some chips for breakfast today.”

Photo by Mark Hayden
Joelle Thompson, senior history major from Kearney. “I like a granola bar and a glass of orange juice.”

History flows through Frank House walls

Frank family, Galloway play early roles in the abolitionist movement from 1883

BY HILLARY KRUGER
Antelope Staff

Black History Month is in full swing and so are the activities at the Frank House.

In celebration of Black History Month, the Frank House has been hosting Frank Talks discussing the role of Eliza Anne Galloway and the Frank men— leaders of the abolitionist movement.

The discussions have been led by Sarah Jones, the programming coordinator for The Frank House.

Jones said the history of the Frank’s involvement in the abolitionist movement goes back to Warsaw, New York, where an anti-slavery society was formed early in 1833. At the time, no community in the United States, not even Boston, had formed an abolitionist organization.

The Liberty Party, the first political party in the United States, called for the abolition of slavery and was the first U.S. party to have African-Americans on its executive board.

Dr. Augustus Frank was a member of the Anti-Slavery Society of New York and the American Anti-Slavery Society. He donated money to the American Anti-Slavery Society as early as the 1830s and served as a “station-master” on the Underground Railroad.

In 1865, Frank helped introduce the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, abolishing slavery in the United States, and also served as its floor manager. The New York Tribune credited Frank and an Ohio congressman for the success of its passage, which had been doubtful.

Jones said that it was Frank’s last public act as a Congressman.

Eliza Anne Galloway was also an important member of the Frank House. Galloway arrived in Kearney in the late 1880s by train. Originally, Galloway was heading for California, but fearful after hearing of rock slides on the tracks past Kearney, she decided to not go any farther.

Galloway was a freed slave turned caterer in Kearney. Jones said that Galloway was a cook in the Frank House.

Besides the history lesson, visitors were also able to take a free tour of the house. The Frank House is open every Saturday during the school year and is free to the public.

“The house is an inspiration for a lot of different classes,” Jones said.

Photos by Sarah Ahlers
Top Photos: According to Victorian era standards, there were 42 rooms in the house, including approximately 20 closets. The construction budget was between $35,000 and $40,000 to build.
Below: The Frank House originally had 10 fireplaces: five on the first floor, four on the second floor and one on the third floor. Six of the fireplaces are still intact. The house was also heated with steam radiators.

THINK

FAST

EAT

JIMMY JOHN'S

FREAKY FAST!

JIMMY JOHN'S Since 1983 GOURMET SANDWICHES

FREAKY GOOD!

AMERICA'S #1 SANDWICH DELIVERY!

2524 FIRST AVE.
308.236.5588

JIMMYJOHNS.COM

©2007 JIMMY JOHN'S FRANCHISE, LLC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Photo by Becci Osborne
Group shot of the cast. Back: Annie Weaver, Amber Hruby, Melissa McMinn, Kristin Nielsen and Valerie Novak. Front: Cristianne Palmer, Demaris Grant, Amber Lewis and Brooke McGee.

Photo by Becci Osborne
Annie Weaver, during her monologue, "The Woman Who Loved to Make Vaginas Happy," does an impression of the "triple orgasm moan."

The Vagina Monologues

Local production benefits Kearney S.A.F.E Center

BY KIMBERLY TOMJACK
Antelope Staff

The local production of The Vagina Monologues by Eve Ensler, was performed at the University of Nebraska at Kearney on Sunday and Monday, Feb. 17 and 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ponderosa room at the Union.

Amber Hruby was performing for her third year in a row. Hruby said the all women cast has been meeting over the past month and practicing for the show. "It's a really positive thing," Hruby said. "It's all about being proud of being a woman."

The performance covered topics such as periods, good and bad things that happen in a woman's life and how to make light of degrading words.

The performance benefited the Kearney S.A.F.E. Center, which helps protect girls and women against violence, and is a part of the global V-day campaign for raising awareness of violent acts committed against women. V-day is an organization aimed primarily at stopping violence against women and girls. Through events like The Vagina Monologues, they strive to increase awareness of violence and to help raise money for local programs that assist women.

Photo by Becci Osborne
Melissa McMinn and Cristianne Palmer give their monologue, "My Vagina was my Village."

UNK students get in the 'swing' of things

Students taking country dancing class two-step their way to social decorum

BY SHELLY FOX
Antelope Staff

Step-together-step-long step.

This basic two-step may not seem like much, but in Brandon Benitz's PE 110 Country Dancing class, students are learning more than just dance steps.

"It teaches appropriate social behavior with others," Benitz said.

Benitz is the assistant to the Dean of Student Life, and a first-time Country Dancing professor.

He has been dancing since high school, and used to barter his DJ services in high school and college for dance lessons.

"I'm excited to teach the course," Benitz said. "I've always taught a couple people at a time, never a big group."

His students range in experience from those who grew up with the style to those who have never had a lesson in their life.

Benitz's curriculum for the course includes teaching students the waltz and two-step—complete with spins and turns—basic swing moves and even a basic side-arm flip.

"The flip won't be part of the final," Benitz said.

He says his students have mastered the waltz and the two-step and are working on putting in swing moves such as the pretzel and eventually the side-arm flip.

For the remainder of the eight-week course, students will be polishing their swing moves, learning some two-step modifications and preparing for their final exam.

All this activity can sometimes draw a crowd.

"The music draws people in and they want to see what's going on," Benitz said.

From admissions tours to faculty, staff and students passing by, almost everyone wants to sneak a peek at this fun and energetic class.

"It's a great way to earn a half-hour of credit," Benitz said.

"Students get a work out and enjoy a great, fun activity."

Photo by Sarah Ahlers
Peter Spirk practices his dance moves with his partner.

Photo by Sarah Ahlers
Jason Hoelting and Amanda Engler review their country dance steps.

Studying abroad offers great opportunity for independence, defining element for students seeking international awareness

BY RACHEAL SMITH
Antelope Staff

Many students from the UNK campus are either thinking about, or starting the process of applying to study abroad. Some will study for a requirement in their area of study and others seek to broaden their horizons.

With the world becoming more internationally minded, many professors on campus are urging their students to study abroad and some are even leading trips themselves. According to the UNK study abroad website, studying abroad can be a "defining element" in a student's future career.

Not only is studying abroad good for your resume, the Web site also talks [Studying abroad] also helped me become more independent and learn to relate with people from another culture.

“

”

Natalie Smith
Junior

about how traveling overseas will teach one about themselves, help a student gain confidence and give perspective on the world.

"Studying abroad not only helped me in my learning Spanish," said junior

Natalie Smith, "it also helped me become more independent and learn to relate with people from another culture."

Though there are quite a few students who decide to study on an international campus, there are still several people who do not even bother looking into it. Some believe that it will be too expensive or that the process would be too long to even bother. The fact is that it really can be very affordable and easy.

To find out more about the programs that are offered through UNK, contact Ann Marie Harr at Welch Hall room 104. Her e-mail address is har-ram@unk.edu or call her at 865-8944. Also, the website for UNK's studying abroad program offers a lot of information including how to get set-up in a program and scholarships that students can apply for. You can find it at www.unk.edu/international/studyabroad.

FREE TAN

for new guests

Grand Island, NE 2203 S. Locust St. 308.381.4826	Kearney, NE 5012 3rd Ave 308.234.3826	Hastings, NE 3609 Cimmarron Plz 402.461.1101
---	--	---

Friends Forever: UNK student volunteers make a big difference in their Little Friends’ lives

BY DEBBIE EPPING
Antelope Staff

As the new year begins, with just one hour of your time per week, you could become a positive role model and make a difference in every aspect of a child’s life, by volunteering.

The Friends Program, sponsored by the Kearney Jubilee Center, provides the opportunity for volunteers known as Big Friends to help their Little Friends experience and develop healthy relationships.

UNK volunteers like Kristen Jensen do make a difference through the Friends mentoring program for local elementary students.

Jensen, a 21-year-old junior at UNK, started in the Friends Program when she was a freshman. The program matches a volunteer and a child for mentoring. The volunteers are mainly UNK students and adults in the community.

During her three years in the program, Jensen has been paired with O’Meara as a Little Friend for two years.

As a Big Friend, Jensen, and her Little Friend, Briana O’Meara like to work on activities such as scrapbooking.

O’Meara is 9 years old and currently attends Central Elementary.

O’Meara said she really enjoys meeting with Jensen. Her favorite thing to with her Big Friend is to go for spaghetti.

Friends Program Coordinator April Roggasch said, “I’m very passionate about helping the kids succeed in life, and I think that our program helps those Little Friends have that opportunity to succeed.”

The Friends Program has documented research of the children’s improvement in school, as well as positive changes in their behavior after participation with their mentor.

“I’ve even had some parents tell me that the Big Friend has been the greatest influence on their child’s life,” Roggasch said.

Roggasch matches Big Friends with their Little Friends based on the applications filled out by both the volunteer and the child’s parent indicating similar interests and hobbies.

“We also get information from the school counselors regarding some of the issues with the kids, so that kind of helps us determine who is higher priority, too,” Roggasch said.

Before a volunteer is assigned a Little Friend, a three-step background check is done. A combination of professional references, a state background check and sex offender registry screening are used to assess the volunteer’s character.

Although 84 kids are currently being mentored in the program, there are still 36 boys, from kindergarten through fifth grade, who are on the waiting list.

Cari Adams, a freshman finance major from Elwood, encourages others to get involved.

“There is a great need in the area. It does make you feel good when you know that you’re helping someone. I think a lot of people think that it takes a lot of time and that they won’t have time for it, but it’s only one hour a week,” Adams said.

Adams has been volunteering in the program for the last four months and was matched with Britney Zimmerman, a third grader at Northeast Elementary.

The Friends Program has a partnership with both the YMCA and the Children’s Museum and encourages cost-free activities. The Big Apple Fun Center also offers a buy one get one admission for bowling. Some of the Friends choose to do “free” outdoor activities or things like board games.

Adams said she and her Little Friend have fun bowling and going to the park.

Adams said the most rewarding part about the program is the moment she goes to pick up her Little Friend. “She just gets so excited and runs up to me, so that’s really nice.”

For information on how to get involved in the Friends Program contact April Roggasch at friendsprogram@msn.com or call (308)-236-2036.

Photo by Dana Helmick
Junior Kristen Jensen and her Little Friend Briana O’Meara, 9, play on the tire swing at Harmon Park on Nov. 28, 2007.

Student Alumni Foundation spreads the love

BY LISA BECKER
Antelope Staff

This Valentine’s Day, the Student Alumni Foundation partnered with the Friends Program for the annual Friends Valentine’s Day party. The party was for those in the Kearney community who are a part of the friends program. Around 100 senior friends and their little friends were invited to attend the party.

The party, which was held in the California room of the Alumni House, was packed full of fun and exciting activities: making valentines, decorating cookies, racing hot wheels on a track made specially for the event, playing bingo and doing puzzles.

The Student Alumni Foundation programs are designed to promote interaction between students, faculty, alumni and the community.

The Friends Valentine’s Day Party began in 2001. Michelle Widger, assistant director of the alumni association, said, “The Valentine’s Day party is part of the outreach to the community that we try to accomplish within the Student Alumni Foundation.”

The Student Alumni Foundation (SAF) was established in 1981 as a liaison between UNK students and the Alumni Association.

“What we do is we offer networking between UNK alumni and current students and help students learn more about the Kearney community,” Widger said.

SAF meets once a month on Sundays at 6 p.m. for a meeting and a meal. The foundation is very busy with projects like Survival Kits, Outstanding Senior Award, Operation Graduation, Senior Appreciate Program and others.

The survival kits are delivered twice a year to freshmen students. SAF typically delivers around 60 kits in the fall semester.

Students who would like to apply to become a member of SAF can go online and complete the application at www.unk.edu/alumni.edu, email a member of SAF by seeing the Facebook group or email or call Michelle Widger at mwidger@nu-foundation.org or 308-865-

8126. Widger said, “I think that when students hear about the Student Alumni Foundation they think that it is only for alumni and it isn’t. We have 33,000 alumni in our database located in places all over the world. SAF is intended to provide current students with networking and contact with those alumni.”

Beefing up security

BY ALISSA ROBERTS
Antelope Staff

If you have walked into Antelope Hall over the last few weeks, chances are you have seen signs telling everyone about a new security camera being installed on Feb. 22, 2008. Naturally, many people have questions about the security cameras.

Rick Larsen, director of Residential and Greek Life, said eight security cameras in Antelope Hall and 10 security cameras in Nester Hall will be installed. The security cameras are important in maintaining the security and safety of Antelope Hall and Nester Hall residents. There is a concern with Nester Hall North and South facing off-campus that surveillance of the building entrances and exits is necessary to keep students safe and secure on campus.

“Our concern is the safety and security of students. Anyone behaving inappropriately will be removed because of policy,” Larsen said.

The cameras will be placed at the entrances and exits of Antelope Hall and Nester Hall. After the cameras are working there will be a sign notifying a camera is filming the area.

Larsen said that cameras are digital and can store information for up to two weeks. In case of an emergency, the date and time of the emergency can be entered into a computer. There would be no need to fast forward a tape to look for the incident.

The cameras should also help the staff of Antelope Hall know if students are locked out or in need of assistance. A monitor has been placed at the front desk of Antelope Hall. The hall director and other staff members will be able to see what is happening on all of the security cameras from one monitor. Larsen thinks some students will like to see the security camera footage.

“I would think that the students would feel safe and secure seeing the monitor,” Larsen said.

The security cameras will not be placed any areas other than the entrances or exits of the building. There will be a camera placed near the tunnel connecting Nester North to Nester South.

Larsen said the security camera system is being installed now because the buildings are new, so it is easier to install this kind of equipment. Another reason for installing the security cameras in Antelope Hall is the ability to fix any problems with the system before the system runs 28 cameras. Eventually, every residence hall on campus might have a security camera at the entrance.

“We want to be known for protecting our students,” Larsen said.

Frank House Photo Contest

Somewhere in the Frank House is...

Email correct option to: sullivankw@unk.edu by 3 p.m. on Friday. The caption on the e-mail should be: ‘Contest.’ The winner wil receive an e-mail response by noon on Monday the following week.

HURRY! The first correct answer receives a prize! Prizes include a large Rand McNally Road Atlas (“Find your way in the USA!”) and Frank House postcards (“Postcards from the Midway City, Frankly!”). Winner will have one week to pick up prize.

OPTIONS:

- Frank House 1 -- Harp from upstairs
- Frank House 2--Little chest from living room

- Frank House 3--Picture of a Geisha upstairs
- Frank House 4--Plate from inside living room

- Frank House 5--Picture of a vase inside living room