Chancellor Douglas A. Kristensen of the University of Nebraska at Kearney and Major General Robert Lempke, Adjutant General of Nebraska, signed an agreement on Tuesday, Aug. 14, to re-instate the Military Science Program in UNK's College of Business and Technology and to mark the beginning of the Guard Officer Leadership development (GOLD) Program at UNK.

Bruce Förster, dean of the College of Business & Technology, also signed the agreement.

The GOLD program will fill the gap left by the absence of the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program, and will be the first of its kind in Nebraska.

Chancellor Kristensen welcomed the program, saying, "[The signing marks a] historic day on our campus . . . The program benefits our students tremendously, and benefits the state of Nebraska."

presence at UNK.

"I believe it [the GOLD Program] will fill the void that has been presented here since the ROTC left," said Prusia, during the

Dr. Peter Longo, interim Dean of Student Life, also spoke, saying, "This [residence hall] is a step toward making UNK the best residential campus in the state of Nebraska. Thank you to all of the people who put work into this project."

Residents will enjoy two- or four-bedroom suites, complete with living room, kitchenette, and one bathroom per two people. In addition, there are two full kitchens, two laundry rooms, a computer lab, and a game room.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony was held on Thursday, Aug. 23 in front of the south doors of Antelope Hall.

"This is too much of an historic day not to mark: the moving in of the first student in Antelope Hall," said Chancellor Doug Kristensen as he opened the ceremony.

James Jelkin, a sophomore Organizational Communications major from Kearney, moved into Antelope Hall on Aug. 24. He lived signing ceremony.

The GOLD Program will begin with two military science courses, with accompanying leadership labs and a military fitness class. Those courses have begun this semester.

"They [students] can try it before they buy it," Maj. Prusia said. "The courses will make them more rounded students and better citizens. By the time they reach the 300 level, they will need to be a member of the Army National Guard to continue in the program."

While no grade point average has been established for students in their freshman or sophomore years, there will likely be GPA requirements at the junior and senior level.

"Students will need to have earned 60 credit hours by the spring of their junior year in order to participate in Officer Candidate School," he added. "And once they are in the 300 level, they will be expected to graduate from college and Officer Candidate School." Areas they have to select from include transportation services, infantry, armor and military intelligence.

Students in the program will have 100 percent of their tuition costs covered, as well as receive drill pay and other benefits.

"The total benefit for the four years will be up to $50,000," Maj. Prusia said. In addition, once commissioned as a Second Lieutenant, there is $10,000 commissioning bonus. A Second Lieutenant, who has three years of experience with the Army National Guard, currently receives $405 for each weekend with the guard, in addition to a monthly base pay.

Those who participate in the program are obligated for eight years; however, they receive credit towards the eight years for they are in the program while in college. Thus, a student who enters the program as a sophomore can have three years to his/her credit upon graduation, which would leave five years of remaining service.

Participants of the GOLD program will stay in Nebraska as members of the Nebraska National Guard after graduation.

According to Maj. Prusia, there are currently only two other states, Oklahoma and Oregon, with GOLD programs.

Northern fought that off and would serve for game point three times (32-31, 33-32, 35-34) but the Lopers managed a tie each time. UNK scored the final three points on a kill by Scott and back-to-back kills by Clausen.

For the match, Burson led the way with 12 kills with Scott and Glidden having 11. Clausen (.533 attack pct.) and Walkowiak each had nine kills. Defensively, sophomore libero Kelli Wemhoff (Humphrey) had 24 digs and Walkowiak three blocks.

In the night cap, a block by Clausen and Walkowiak broke a 16 all tie in the first set. That started a 14-2 Loper run that featured Bartlett senior Lauren Nordhues serving up the final eight points.

The Falcons didn't have much after that and hit negative .043 for the match (24-30-139). UNK, hitting only .209, did out dig UM by 15 and register 18 more kills.

No Loper reached double digits in kills but five different players had at least five. That included reserves Nordhues and Anselmo sophomore Emily Christen. Wemhoff (25 digs) was again solid in the backrow with freshman setter Cola Svec (Elkhorn) having 32 assists, 12 digs, three blocks and three kills.

UNK competes in the Rockhurst Invite in Kansas City this upcoming weekend.

Students enjoy human bowling and the bungee-run, but the true test of skill lies in the obstacle course, seen on the right.

The rockwall destroys the self-esteem of one UNK student, who was unable to reach this sun-glistened peak.

Above: One UNK student stretches out her arms and digs deep to find enough strength to fight her way down the trench against the tension of the bungee cord.
