

Over 800 attend 2nd annual Korean Festival.

6-7

the antelope

www.unkantelope.com

NOVEMBER 28, 2012 Volume 114, Issue 12

THIS WEEK

4 No need for drugs

Stolzer concerned with reliance on drugs to treat depression. News

5 Big Red is Back

Huskers head to Big 10 championship. Sports

8 'Skyfall'

Lastest James Bond movie wows audiences, but is Craig the greatest Bond of all time? Entertainment

THANKSGIVING: a time for family, food, celebration in both US, South Korea

BY ADRIANNA TARIN
Antelope Staff

Millions of miles from home and a week off of school, what is an international student to do?

Every year it seems like even though UNK turns into a ghost town for Thanksgiving break, some students are still left behind, and most are international students.

Courtesy Photo
Hyeona Lee, a senior international student of Anyang, South Korea spent Thanksgiving with her roommate, Jillian Stoumbaugh's family in Westminster, Colo.

A week off of school is great for a break from reality right before the final stretch of the semester, but for the international students who are thousands of miles from home, it can seem like a long time.

For the fortunate who have friends to take them to their homes for the holidays, they get to experience the real American Thanksgiving.

"For Thanksgiving break, my roommate Jillian Stoumbaugh took me to her home in Westminster, Colo.," said Hyeona Lee, a senior international student from Anyang, South Korea. Lee, who is majoring in hospitality and tourism, was given the American Thanksgiving experience with the Stoumbaugh family.

"This was the first time I ever had real turkey, homemade cranberries that weren't canned, homemade stuffing that wasn't from a box, eggnog and pumpkin pie," Lee said.

Lee's week away from school involved a spread of Thanksgiving dinner, traveling around Denver and Black Friday shopping.

"I got to help Jillian's family with cooking the Thanksgiving dinner and they even took me to an Asian market so that I could make them Korean food," Lee said. "I really enjoyed my time, and I hope they liked my food as much as I liked theirs."

THANKSGIVING, PAGE 11

Results from last week's online poll at unkantelope.com

Do you go shopping on Black Friday?

30 %
Yes, but I'm not a big fan of the crowds

BLACK FRIDAY

60% No — the discounts just aren't worth it

10% Yes!
Bring on the savings!

This week's online poll question:

Who do you think is the greatest James Bond?

Vote at www.unkantelope.com

Talbott hits the road for 'Leaving Home' following CD release Nov. 30, graduation

BY EMILY DAVIDSON
JMC 220

Nick Talbott, a senior family studies major, has big aspirations. Talbott is graduating this December, and unlike his fellow classmates, he will be searching out different music venues on an album tour instead of hitting the pavement for job openings.

In the meantime, though, he will be plenty busy with local events including

Photo by Emily Davidson

Nick Talbott, a senior family studies major from Imperial strums on his guitar downtown Kearney as he waits for the new-release of his album "Leaving Home."

the CD release show at the Kearney eFree Church Nov. 30.

The Talbott Brothers, an alternative blues/rock band, recently completed their first album, "Leaving Home."

"It's about leaving home and just all the experiences that we had," Talbott said. "We started recording in March and did it all ourselves with a record label (Cabin Fever Records) here in town. It made us appreciate the authenticity of our music because we don't have all of the fancy computers," Talbott said.

Without taking lessons, Nick became very interested in music at a young age. "I got a plastic guitar from my parents when

TALBOTT, PAGE 11

the antelope

FALL 2012 STAFF

Lacey McPhillips
Editor in Chief

Caitlin Ostberg
Print Editor

Amanda Arnold
Copy Editor

Taylor Anderson
Ad Manager

Jay Omar
News/Opinion
Photo Staff

Emily Seevers
News and Features Editor

Aaron Urbanski
Sports Editor

Rachel Van Boening
Promotions Manager

Travis Stewart
Tate Schneider
Marie Bauer
Designers

Adrianna Tarin
Photo Editor

Hanna Jorgensen
Online manager

Jaycie Woslager
Circulation Manager
Photo Staff

Michael Florance
Business Manager

Terri Diffenderfer
Print, Online Adviser

Christina Jackson
Ad Adviser

News Staff
Mandy Hinrichs
Maggie Sowl
Yifei Zhao

Ad Staff
Krista Coyler
Hayley Herzog
Hope Merrick
Krystal Nunnenkamp
Casey Paine
Tate Schneider
Wesley Schrier
Jay Sloan
Nobuaki Ueda

(308) 865-8488
antelopeneeds@unk.edu

Advertising
(308) 865-8487
antelopeneeds@unk.edu

Fax
(308) 865-8708

Mail
The Antelope
166 Mitchell Center
University of Nebraska at Kearney
Kearney, NE 68849

Here comes Santa... What's a turkey to do?

Thanksgiving didn't stand a chance with Christmas decorations the day after Halloween

BY MARIE BAUER
Antelope Staff

I was wandering into a store last month, and I encountered a frightening sight.

No, it wasn't the leftover clearance Halloween aisle. I walked into the store, and I was attacked by Christmas.

Tiny little elves must have mysteriously appeared the previous night, decided it was most definitely Christmas time, a perfectly acceptable time to decorate for the holiday season.

There were Christmas dishcloths, Santa toilet seat covers, wrapping paper, Christmas trees, Christmas tree ornaments, strings of lights, tinsel, the whole ordeal.

I kept up a brisk pace, hoping it was all a dream. Surely it could not be December yet. Last I remembered it was only November. Thanksgiving hadn't even happened yet. Finals week had not happened yet, had it? Where had the time gone?

I looked down at my phone to see the date. It was Nov. 1, the day after Halloween, and once again Thanksgiving did not make the cut. The stores had skipped over Thanksgiving all together to make room for Christmas.

I cannot remember a time when Christmas has not proceeded Thanksgiving. Every year Christmas comes earlier and earlier and earlier until Christmas is arriving in September. Hobby Lobby seems to be the biggest offender. They decorate for the holiday season in July. A rule of thumb, Hobby Lobby, when I can wear shorts, Christmas decorations should not be up.

Nonetheless, by the time Christmas season has finally arrived (the start of the Christmas season starts the day after Thanksgiving in my book), the magic of the holiday season has significantly depleted.

The aisles look picked over like a yesterday's garage sale. The Christmas spirit is so drawn out, that there simply is not enough Christmas spirit to last that long. Something is only magical in small doses.

I suggest a simple remedy for this lack of Christmas spirit that seems to occur once December hits. Let's hold back on Christmas until after Thanksgiving.

Wait, I am willing to compromise. Christmas can come up Thanksgiving Day since most people will not witness the mutilation of Thanksgiving's good name because they will be spending time on this American holiday the way it should be spent, enjoying the company of family and friends

Thanksgiving seems to just be a lead in holiday for the main attraction of all the holidays: Christmas

However Christmas is not just about the time to relax and enjoy family. It has turned into an ugly beast that wants to consume everyone's paychecks. The emphasis on Christmas presents is simply enormous.

It is ironic that the day after Thanksgiving, a holiday we spend time being grateful of all that we have and the good stuff in life, many choose to spend the day pushing and shoving, getting the best deal on the latest toy? Half of the Black Friday shopping is people shopping for themselves.

Christmas spirit is about being selfless. Hello, the classic Christmas story, "A Christmas Carol?" Ebenezer Scrooge gained the Christmas spirit and bought a turkey for his employee from the goodness of his heart.

Believe it or not, I actually love Christmas time, but it has to have some limitations. It is simply getting out of hand. Not many people LOVE Thanksgiving. Yeah, it is an excuse to eat a lot, but I love Thanksgiving. It is such an easygoing holiday. There is no need for a ton of decorations. With Halloween there is pressure to come up with an epic costume; Christmas is all about spending money on presents.

Thanksgiving is a nice little break from the chaos. If Thanksgiving was a hippie, he would be like, "Come on man, eat some turkey. What you thankful for? ... That's cool man. Have some cranberry sauce." Thanksgiving wants us to slow down, eat food and be happy. Why are we fighting that?

Perhaps if we celebrate Thanksgiving the way it was supposed to be celebrated, Christmas would not be so overwhelming. If the entire month was spent getting ready for Thanksgiving instead of Christmas, we would not be so burned out of the holiday cheer. So this November, I started a new tradition around Thanksgiving time. I just ate turkey and was happy, and I definitely did not go to worry about Christmas yet.

Turkey Trivia

In the U.S., about 280 million turkeys are sold for the Thanksgiving celebrations.

Each year, the average American eats somewhere between 16 - 18 pounds of turkey.

Californians are the largest consumers of turkey in the U.S.

SENIOR ART SHOW JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Photo by Marie Bauer

Kylie Hauer, visual communication and design major from Merino, Colo., examines her results after sandblasting wine glasses with the logo she designed. The wine glasses are part of her senior show. Hauer is creating an Alice and Wonderland themed dinner theatre. She will be creating a table setting with all Alice and Wonderland inspired dinnerware. Her senior show will soon be displayed in the Walker Art Gallery in the Fine Arts Building.

CAMPUS CRIME LOG

- Nov. 12: A male subject reported the theft of nine international flags from east campus.

Nov. 13: A male subject was issued a written warning for defective taillights and rolling through a stop sign.

Nov. 16: A UNK custodian reported toilet paper rolls being stolen from Bruner Hall of Science.

Nov. 16: Two entry doors to Cranwood Inn main house were broken into and it appears the rooms were recently occupied.

Nov. 16: Three male subjects were cited for minor in possession
- of alcohol after a traffic stop at 28th street and 8th avenue.

Nov. 20: A male student reported the theft of items from his vehicle at University Heights.

Nov. 20: A liquor violation was called in, however the subject was out of town. The subject will receive a citation upon return.

Nov. 23: A male subject reported the theft of two Kindle E-Readers and a USB from his vehicle parked in lot 31.

Nov. 25: A female subject was issued a citation for speeding 41 mph in a 30 mph zone.

Sudoku ★★★★★☆

How to play:

Sudoku is a placement puzzle. The aim of the puzzle is to enter a numeral from 1 through 9 in each cell of a grid. Each row, column and region must contain only one instance of each numeral. Completing the puzzle requires patience and logical ability. The puzzle initially became popular in Japan in 1986 and attained international popularity in 2005.

		3				7
				1		6		8
8			2	6			4
			9					4
		9	6		2	5
3					8
	4			3	1			5
7		6		2
		5				9

NO NEED FOR DRUGS

Stolzer concerned with reliance on drugs to treat depression despite missing evidence of chemical causes, effectiveness of treatments

BY MANDY HINRICHS
Antelope Staff

During research Dr. Jeanne Stolzer, associate professor in family studies became concerned with the way Americans look at drugs as treatment for depression. Stolzer has been researching topics of psychotropic medications for 12 years now.

In the last 20 years, the number of people diagnosed with depression has skyrocketed. Depression is now the leading cause of disability in American women aged 18 to 44 years. "I just want to know how we have convinced a whole generation of Americans that these are disorders of the brain and require dangerous drugs," Dr. Stolzer said.

Stolzer has found that the United States is one of only three countries that will allow antidepressant commercials.

Through Dr. Stolzer's research, she says she finds that the secret kept from the American public is the data says antidepressant drugs are no more effective than active placebos in combating depression.

"The fact of the matter is there is no way to identify chemical imbalance, nor is there any scientific proof that a monoamine deficit exists."

Dr. Stolzer says that she really just wants UNK students to know the dangers of taking antidepressant medications and consider a better way of handling depression without the use of dangerous drugs.

Depression symptoms have been defined by the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders as difficulty thinking and concentrating, sadness, helplessness and disinterest. Depression is diagnosed by a checklist that documents some of these particular feelings and behaviors.

"These behaviors have been documented across all cultures and have only recently been classified as psychiatric disorders. The majority of Americans do not know that illnesses such as depression, ADHD and bipolar are voted into existence by the American Psychiatric Association," Stolzer said.

Along with those findings, Dr. Stolzer says that depression has been defined as a chemical imbalance of the brain.

"I just don't know how they can determine that because there is no MRI, CAT scan or blood work test that can measure the chemical imbalance of our brains," Dr. Stolzer said.

Dr. Stolzer says that when she was a child there weren't people taking antidepressants, but today it is very common.

"Antidepressants work by increasing the levels of synthetic serotonin in the brain," Dr. Stolzer said.

But, with any medications there are negatives to taking it as well as side effects. Some side effects that are common with the antidepressants include suicidal thoughts, anxiety, hostility, liver disease, vertigo and death.

"These medications can become very addictive and many people don't know that if they just wake up one day and decide to stop these medications they could die, these medications need to be reduced and stopped slowly," Dr. Stolzer said.

With such harmful side effects, Dr. Stolzer says that there has to be better choices and options for people.

"Everybody has ups and downs in life, but as a country we need to do better with handling these emotions," Dr. Stolzer said.

Publications by Jeanne Stolzer

- Stolzer, J. (2005). "ADHD in America: a bioecological analysis." Journal of Ethical Human Sciences and Services: An International Journal of Critical Inquiry 7 (1).
- Stolzer, J.M. (2008). "Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder." Encyclopedia of the Life Course and Human Development. Macmillan Social Science Library: New York, Gale Publishing.
- Stolzer, J.M. (2008). "Boys and the American Education System: A Biocultural Review of the Literature." Ethical Human Psychology and Psychiatry: An International Journal of Critical Inquiry.

It is recommended that people who feel that they have depression change their social relationships, get more sunlight, stop all drugs including alcohol, exercise, diet and consider spiritual functioning. Dr. Stolzer says that these changes may be hard but these are a much better way.

The power of knowing

Queer Straight Alliance, UNMC College of Nursing host HIV/STI screening

BY AMANDA ARNOLD
Antelope Staff

UNK's Queer Straight Alliance (QSA) is hosting its second annual "Spread Love Not Disease" HIV/STI screening with the help of the UNMC College of Nursing Nov. 29 from 2-8 p.m. in the Nebraskan Student Union, Room 310.

This event is expected to be uniquely lighthearted and will feature multiple types of games with prize rewards. Food will be provided at the event for those participating in the screenings.

It may seem unlikely to have HIV or STI, but the statistics say otherwise. One in every five people in the United States that are living with HIV don't even know it, and over 1 million total people in the U.S. are dealing with HIV infections. About 50,000 new people become infected each year, and the responsibility to get tested and find out rests on the individuals' shoulders.

QSA, an organization designed to promote tolerance and acceptance between people of different sexual orientations, had a lot of success last year with the screening and are back to do it again for the sake of knowledge. Students can be certain that they will receive professional and confidential care during the entire process of the screening, with unbiased support from the organization when needed.

A common misconception about HIV is that it is solely sex-related. While the highest percentage is related to sexuality, 11 percent of HIV cases stem from injection drug users. In rare instances, innocent people have been exposed to HIV simply by touching needles used by infected people.

UNK's QSA encourages everyone to come to the event to get screened, because not knowing or deciding to not face it can prove deadly. Knowledge is the strongest weapon to combat HIV and STIs, and the first step can be taken on Nov. 29.

The objective of the Queer Straight Alliance is to promote awareness and education, as well as provide a safe place for discussion between LGBTQ persons and allies. The organization regularly organizes other events such as movie nights and training workshops as well as a "Support Love" week. Meetings are scheduled for Thursdays in Room 312 of the Nebraskan Student Union. Membership with the organization is free and the only record of membership is the sign-in sheet at the meetings, which are kept confidential.

For more information about QSA or the screening, contact QSA adviser Matthew Mims at 308-865-8625 or mimsjmj@unk.edu.

Study Abroad in China!

Earn 12 UNK Credits while studying on a Chinese campus.

Study and live in Shijiazhuang, China: a large, rapidly growing, and modern city.

Field trips to other Chinese cities included!

To learn more,
email parkam@unk.edu
or use this QR Code:

Victorious in MIAA, Lopers head to Regionals

Courtesy Photo

Third seed Lady Lopers pitted against Washburn

BY AARON URBANKSI
Antelope Sports

It has been a season of impressive streaks for the UNK volleyball team, who capped of the regular season with the program's first MIAA Conference Championship and a 14th-straight postseason berth at the Health and Sports Center earlier this month.

With the win, the Lopers finished the regular season with a 33-2 (16-1) record and have now won a share of a conference title every season dating back to the 2003.

OK, impressive may be an understatement. One could probably argue streaks like this are borderline ridiculous.

But ultimately, it's finally time to see what this second-ranked Loper squad can do on the national scene.

Following Sunday's release of the NCAA Division II 64-team tournament bracket, the Lopers have been slated as the third seed in a Central Regional and will square off with MIAA rival Washburn University in the opening round on Nov. 29, in St. Paul, Minn. The Lopers will undoubtedly have their work cut out for them in this year's Central Regional as the match will mark the third time UNK has played Washburn during the 2012 campaign after defeating the Lady Blues 3-0, 3-2 during conference play.

In addition, the Central Regional will also showcase six of the nation's top ten Division II volleyball squads according to the AVCA with five-time defending national champion Concordia-St. Paul earning the region's top seed.

The Golden Bears are followed by No. 2 Southwest Minnesota State (29-2), No. 2 UNK, No. 8 Central Missouri (26-6), No. 5 Minnesota-Duluth (28-4), No. 4 Washburn (31-3), No. 13 Truman State (27-6), and No. 16 Wayne State (22-9) respectively to round out the group.

Regional competition will be held Nov. 29-Dec. 1 with quarterfinal and semifinal rounds scheduled to take place Dec. 6-7. The Division II National Championship will be held Dec. 8, in Pensacola, Fla.

The Big Red returns to prominence in Big 10

BY AARON URBANKSI
Antelope Sports

Face it; these aren't your daddy's Huskers. Nor have they been for quite some time. But following a 13-7 win over the Iowa Hawkeyes (4-8) on Black Friday, the Cornhuskers (10-2) are now just one win over the Wisconsin Badgers in the Big Ten Championship game away from securing the team's first conference title since 1999 and the team's first BCS bowl game since playing for the National Championship against Miami in 2001.

The scenario seemed unlikely, especially after a decade of mediocrity and a 63-38 beat down by the Buckeyes in Columbus, Ohio, just six weeks ago. At the time the team was 4-2, the offense was inconsistent, the defense forgot how to tackle, and Head Coach Bo Pelini appeared to be going senile in his postgame press conference calling for the Huskers to win out.

Six games down, six wins later; Bo apparently still knows best. But what changed this team from a sloppy mess on the field to a hard-nosed contending squad heading into December? Perseverance. "They never quit. They never die. I think it goes back to who they are," Co-Offensive Line Coach John Garrison said in a recent interview with the Lincoln Journal Star. "I don't know if we're the most talented group of guys, but we're pretty dang tough." Tough enough to come from behind on the road to secure wins against Michigan State, Northwestern and Iowa. Tough enough to avenge blowout losses from a year ago against Wisconsin and Michigan at home.

But are they tough enough to beat Wisconsin twice in the same season? Despite finishing third in the Leaders division behind ineligible Penn State and Ohio State, the Badgers are looking to secure their third Rose Bowl berth in three years under Head Coach Brett Bielema. This may not be Bielema's best squad in recent years, but it's the same team that almost walked away from Lincoln with a victory in October if not for the second greatest Husker comeback in school history resulting in a 30-27 win.

Oh by the way, the Badgers still have the greatest scoring threat to ever play at the college level lined up in the Backfield in Monte Ball and the offensive line has gotten better since firing former Assistant Coach Mike Markuson midway through the season. Believe me, the Badgers are tough too.

No doubt Nebraska's road to success has been many things this season. It's been exciting, gut wrenching, painful, but never dull. With a Big Ten Championship and an appearance in the Rose Bowl, Nebraska may find a signature win that puts this team back on the national radar with voters and much needed recruits moving forward.

Ultimately you'll never really know what to expect from this Husker squad. They're unpredictable, yet effective as a result of come-from-behind wins and persistence. Maybe this is why they're not your daddy's Huskers. Whatever it is, it's been entertaining to say the least.

elesch
2112 Central Avenue Kearney, NE 68847
www.elesch.com

Come enjoy our storewide savings this holiday season.

Christmas Walk

November 29th

20% off outerwear

Mon: 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Tue - Sat: 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sun: 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.

Tap into Specials at Everyday

Pitchers
$6.00 after 6 p.m.

Wednesday

Pitchers
$6.00 after 6 p.m.

Thursday

BIG ASS Beers
$5.00 after 10 p.m.

Saturday

BIG ASS Beers
$5.00 all day

Platte Valley Brewery

Located at 14 E Railroad Street Platte Valley Brewery is open
3 p.m. to 1 a.m. everyday except Sundays.

KOREAN FESTIVAL LOPER STYLE

Photo by Hyeonji Amy Lim

BELOW: Mia Malcom from Minden had her face painted "I love Korea" for the Korean Festival held Nov. 18, at University of Nebraska at Kearney. She has four Korean friends who are her host siblings. Mia said "I want to visit Korea and my friends when I grow up."

Photo by Hyejin Park

CENTER: In addition to food and fun learning culture at the festival sponsored by Korean Students Association Kearney (KSAK), groups of students performed for the crowd. Over 800 people enjoyed the Festival, which lasted from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Photo by Amy Hadley

RIGHT: Bo-seong Kim, junior business major from Jeju Island, South Korea, performs NANTA at the Korean Festival. NANTA is a nonverbal performance that integrates traditional Korean rhythms, modern music and comedy. NANTA debuted in 1997, and is now a world famous event because people of any language can understand it.

Photo by Hyeonji Amy Lim

LEFT: Jung Mo Ryu from Busan, South Korea, breaks a board using Taekwondo, a martial art originating from his country, at the Korean Festival at UNK. More than 20 Korean students performed Taekwondo by breaking boards and doing sparring. Taekwondo has been an Olympic event since 2000.

Photo by Cami Christman

BELOW: Hyesoo Chang paints the face of Daniel Gibbs during the Korean Festival on Sunday, Nov. 18. Hyesoo is a senior graphic design major from Korea and is studying English at UNK. Daniel, from Kearney, is studying music education, music performance, and food science.

Photo by Adrianna Tarin

ABOVE: Boram Kim, junior education major from Jeju, Korea, and Jeong Hyun-Boo, junior geography major from Jeju, Korea, worked at the calligraphy station at the Korean Festival. There were eight different stations to learn more about the Korean cultures and five performances by Korean students.

'Skyfall': Celebrating 50 Years of James Bond

Daniel Craig makes a good Bond, but is he the best in 50 years?

"I expected the movie to be great, but that was one of the best movies I have seen in a long time."

— Casey Stangl

BY BYRCE DOLAN
JMC 215

After 50 years of MI6 espionage, the 23rd James Bond movie "Skyfall" has been released and is drawing in the public. The most recent "James Bond" has been played by Daniel Craig, and according to Rolling Stone, Craig is "The baddest Bond yet."

I do not disagree with Rolling Stone. He is bad in the good way. But, I do not believe Daniel Craig is the best Bond that has ever been on screen.

Over a span of 50 years, the role of James Bond has been played by numerous actors: Sean Connery, George Lazenby, Roger Moore, Timothy Dalton, Pierce Brosnan and most recently, Daniel Craig.

I grew up watching Pierce Brosnan in his movies "Die Another Day," "Goldeneye" and "The World is Not Enough," and Brosnan always had a very slick modest look with dark brown hair and eyes. Brosnan fit the right description of a British man, only fitting since James Bond is a British secret agent. However, even though I am in favor of Brosnan, he takes third place in the Bond rankings. Craig falls into a solid second place only behind the legendary Sean Connery.

Craig did not always get such great reviews from the movie critics. After his last movie as Bond, "Quantum of Solace," Craig took a beating from critics claiming the movie was "the worst Bond movie ever made."

"Skyfall" is Craig's savior. With action-packed scenes full of dangerous stunts and explosions, Craig has now possibly made one of the best espionage films in the Bond series.

"I expected the movie to be great, but that was one of the best movies I have seen in a long time," said Cinema 8 manager Casey Stangl, "The story line just blew me away."

James Bond movies generally have a similar plot, but Craig's new film has twists and turns throughout the whole movie. Instead of preventing world domination or world mass destruction, MI6 is actually attacked from the inside.

Early in the film, the terrorist release a video on YouTube revealing the secret identities of MI6 agents currently on undercover missions resulting in their deaths. MI6 headquarters are directly attacked in the movie as well. The word Skyfall itself has a very deep emotional tie with Bond, which you learn at the very end of the movie.

Overall, I would have to agree that Daniel Craig deserves to be in the top three greatest Bonds of all time, and "Skyfall" is undoubtedly one of the best Bond films ever made. "Skyfall" is still playing in theaters, and I suggest buying a ticket as soon as you can.

DOLAN'S TOP 3 BONDS

1. Sean Connery

1962-1983

2. Daniel Craig

2006-Present

3. Pierce Brosnan

1995-2002

MAUI European Programs

Study abroad for a semester or a year at an institution in one of 25 countries!

Mid-American Universities
International (MAUI) is associated with
UNK and five other Mid-Western states.

Pay 15 credit hours of
UNK tuition, plus fees.

To learn more, email
parkam@unk.edu or use
this QR Code:

Learning more than just language

Abundant opportunities wait in Peru — students recount valuable experiences

BY YIFEI ZHAO
Antelope Staff

Learning language was one of goals senior Kathy Venteicher wanted to gain from study abroad in Peru. However, after returning home, she found she ended up just loving Peru.

"I am studying to become a Spanish and ESL teacher, so I wanted to become fluent in Spanish. I've always wanted to study abroad, and Peru was a great opportunity because it was the same price as a semester at Kearney," Venteicher said. She is a secondary education major with endorsements in Spanish and English as a second language from Pierce.

"Study in Peru is much less stressful than study at UNK," Venteicher said. She said the students slowed down and learned from Peruvians.

"My life in Peru was a lot less stressful than my life here," Venteicher said. "I envisioned spending my free time in Peru meeting other Peruvians and traveling. I ended up doing both. We took two class trips to Machu Picchu and Ica, and then a small group of us went to Iquitos in the Amazon Rain Forest at the end of our trip."

Another senior student, Stephanie Metzger majoring in pre-dental hygiene and Spanish from Kearney, said she experienced a fantastic trip in Peru.

"I had many interesting things that I did in Peru, so it's tough to choose which one is the best. I hiked the ruins of Machu Picchu, sand boarded the sand dunes in Ica, swam in the Amazon River, went whitewater rafting in Arequipa and even ate some interesting foods such as crocodile and guinea pig," Metzger said.

Studying in a new culture can be interesting and exciting, but it also can be confusing and emotional. Mary Stuart, a junior elementary education and Spanish education major from Kearney, said she experienced many emotions while adapting to a foreign culture.

Stuart lived with a big family in a big house in Peru. Living with a big family made life interesting.

"I lived with 12 other people. My house in America is a typical American house. When I was in Peru, the house I lived in was probably three times the size of my house in America. It was grandma and grandma's sister—and she has four children. There were grandmas, children and grandchildren," Stuart said.

Some customs in Peru are very different.

"The first time we headed out with Peruvians to the zoo, it was supposed be at

Courtesy Photo

Kathy Venteicher, a senior secondary education major from Pierce with endorsements in Spanish and English as a second language, meets a few Peruvian dancers at a performance of native dances in Barranco, Peru, during her study abroad experience last spring.

10 in the morning. We are all there ready to go. The Peruvians showed up at 11:30 a.m. They did not understand why we were annoyed or upset. We were upset, because they run an hour and half late."

"It's different," Stuart said. "If you are an American and you agree to meet someone at 10 in the morning, you would probably be there at 10 in the morning. But in Peru if you agree to meet at certain time, just add an hour or so extra.

That's what people really mean," Stuart said.

Other customs were different. "When you are greeting someone in Peru to say hello, you always greet him or her with a kiss on the cheek. The first time, it was so different for me. We would never do that in America," Stuart said.

Study in Peru was also a great opportunity to learn how to deal with a moment of difficulty in an unfamiliar situation for Venteicher.

"I went to Trujillo, a city about 15 hours north of Lima, to visit a friend's host family. On our way back, our bus was stopped due to a protest. The protest of the illegal miners lasted for three days, so we turned around and were helpless for 48 hours. We finally made it back safely back to Lima, but now I pay closer attention to all of the political happenings in Peru," Venteicher said.

"When I first got there my Spanish was not the best, and there was a lot of confusion between my host family and I," Metzger said. "But that is the purpose of studying abroad. It teaches you how to deal with unfamiliar situations and to step out of your comfort zone in order to learn how to become independent and overcome your problems."

You really stretch your boundaries, Metzger said. "These problems could be as simple as language barriers or the fear of trying new things. It allows you to appreciate what the world has to offer and to experience a different culture other than your own."

Classified Ads

Where Leaders Are Made

Toastmasters International. Confident, charismatic leaders weren't born that way. Become a better leader, speaker and negotiator. Sharpen your management skills. Inspire your team. Be decisive!!

Contact Mat Poehler at 308.216.1519

AmeriCorps:

Serve in your Community! AmeriCorps positions — Rural Corps Program Stipend & Educational Award. Web sites: ruralcorps.org & americorps.gov Email: stirtzg@unk.edu

Employment

Kearney Youth Rehabilitation and Treatment Center: Youth Security Specialist II, $13.218 per hour For complete details, go to www.statejobs.nebraska.gov or Contact Wanda Yoachim, 402.469.2324

Visit unkantelope.com for more information about classified ads or email antelopeads@unk.edu.

EXPERIENCE AMAZING SKIN

With Clear + Brilliant Technology

It not only corrects unwanted signs of aging, but also prevents them using safe laser technology.

Call for an appointment today!

308-234-9613

2903 West HWY 30

www.bodymedicakearney.com

Body Medica
CLINICAL HEALTH & MEDICAL SPA

Hanson studies abroad once, twice, three times

Senior Erik Hanson has taken full advantage of UNK's study abroad opportunities with two separate trips to Germany, one to South Korea

BY JAY OMAR
Antelope Staff

When Erik Hanson graduates in in December, he'll be leaving with more than just fond memories of time spent at this Midwestern campus.

Hanson, like the international students on UNK's campus, spent the last two semesters far away from his Kearney home.

Hanson, a senior German major, left in September 2011 and spent two consecutive semesters in Seoul, South Korea, at the Chung-Ang University.

Hanson returned in July of 2012 with a new world experience under his belt.

The beginning of his journey started by promoting the study abroad program on UNK's campus. After two separate trips to Germany, Hanson wanted to spread the word about the benefits of traveling overseas.

"I had gone to Germany through UNK before, and when I got back I got involved with promoting study abroad," Hanson said. "We started making posters about traveling to Korea, and it just sparked my interest as something that I would want to do."

Although the last year for Hanson was spent overseas, he can't help but notice the Korean influence back home.

"This semester there are 180 Korean students alone, and next year there are projected to be 250 Korean students," Hanson said. "UNK extensively promotes toward international students, and promoters like Jaekuen Cho do an incredible job."

Hanson could probably relate to the students who are studying abroad in Nebraska better than most in Kearney. He explained that the cultural differences are vast, and Kearney and Seoul are two very different cities.

"There is a huge emphasis on age in Korea. Plus a major thing I noticed is that it is very fast paced and slow paced at the same time. People wait till the last minute to do things, but always get them done," Hanson said.

Hanson was sent to South Korea through an organization called the Embassy of International Study or AIS. Hanson explained that once you decide study abroad is for you, there is always a way to make it possible.

"I was making posters and promoting study abroad when I decided I wanted to go to South Korea. I looked for a program that would send me, and I found a way."

— Erik Hanson

"I was making posters and promoting study abroad when I decided I wanted to go to South Korea. I looked for a program that would send me, and I found a way," Hanson said.

Hanson also touched on a few of the major setbacks that students face when trying to study abroad.

"A lot of concerns are graduating on time, getting requirements done and being able to afford it. Luckily at UNK there are a lot of ways around that. There are scholarships and ways to still graduate on time. You just have to find ways to make it happen," Hanson said.

Hanson has spent three semesters abroad and encourages other students to participate as well.

"If you're younger, there are a lot of ways to make it happen, and there are a lot worse things that you can do than get delayed by a semester of study abroad," Hanson said. "It was absolutely worth it."

Courtesy Photo

Erik Hanson views the busy South Korean street near the campus where he studied two consecutive semesters last year. His semester in South Korea was the third study abroad trip of his college career.

Sudoku answer:

Upside down, from page 3

7	2	6	9	8	4	5	3	1
1	3	4	6	2	5	9	8	7
5	9	8	1	3	7	2	4	6
9	6	2	8	4	1	7	5	3
3	8	5	2	7	9	6	1	4
4	7	1	3	5	9	8	2	6
6	4	3	5	9	2	1	7	8
8	5	9	7	1	3	4	6	2
2	1	7	4	9	8	3	6	5

Photo by Adrianna Tarin

As part of the Native Games Super Run challenge, the six teams competing had to accomplish group push-ups. Every member's feet had to be off the ground in order to be finished with this phase of the Super Run.

A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES

Where do you want to go?

Photo by Hanna Jorgensen

At the Study Abroad, International Fair, displays were made to represent each country that UNK offers in its Study Abroad Program. Students can choose from over 37 different countries offered in the program.

Talbott from page 1

I was six years old and ever since then, I've really liked music," Talbott said.

With their love of music so strong, Nick and his brother, Tyler, decided to form the band with drummer Brian Gangwish and bassist Dan Lantzer.

Unfortunately, UNK does not offer a rock star degree, but they do offer a family studies major.

"Family studies is basically a major that teaches you how to live your life in a healthy state and about different people's lifestyles. I thought it would be great to learn about people and the differences I might encounter" Talbott said.

While attending UNK, Talbott has experienced living on campus, getting involved in campus ministries like Christian Student Fellowship, and he got married.

He says his family has been his biggest support.

"Both of my parents are my heroes. My dad has taught me that I need to work really really hard to get where I want to go. To see his drive has really pushed my brother and I to pursue music" Talbott said.

"Tyler and I are pretty tight. We have a lot of the same views on things, and that's why our band is where it is. We challenge and push each other. To see our music unfolding before us is hard to believe," Talbott said. "Sharing the stage with him is an honor."

The Talbott Brothers can play in a bar on Saturday night and a church on Sunday morning. Their music is so diverse that there is no definitive genre associated with it.

"Our genre is honest, authentic music. We write about our experience and I feel like a lot of music today doesn't have

Thanksgiving from page 1

"I liked the pumpkin cheesecake that Jillian made, the most," Lee said.

Lee got to see many parts of the state while she was in Colorado and experienced new things with those she was with.

"We went to Breckenridge, which is a very popular mountain town in Colorado and drove through the Eisenhower Tunnel, which goes through the mountain," Lee said. "We went tubing in the snow and went to all kinds of shops. I got to get postcards with pictures of the mountains on one side and the other side has a spot for a note to send to my family."

Lee noted the many American traditions that she experiences and how they compare to Korean holidays.

"I got the whole American Thanksgiving experience, and after, I got to experience Black Friday shopping," Lee said. "We shopped for 13 hours from 5 a.m. to 6 p.m."

"Back in Korea, we celebrate Thanksgiving also," Lee said. "We celebrate it in October and although the American holiday and the Korean holiday are different in a lot of ways, they are the same in many ways too."

According to Lee, in Korea, they also have about a week break from school and the whole family comes together to celebrate and have Thanksgiving food. This also usually consists of rice cakes steamed on a layer of pine needles, which is called Songpyon.

"About 50 of my relatives usually meet at grandfather's house and make sweet grilled beef, or Bulgogi, and other foods such as chicken boiled with rice, roasted vegetables and Korean green onion friend pancake," Lee said.

"Since I've been in America, I've missed Thanksgiving, Memorial Days, New Year's Day, Buddha's birthday and The National Foundation Day," said Lee. "But I'm glad I got to celebrate Korean Thanksgiving day with my Korean friends in Kearney. We made a lot of Korean food, and before we ate the food, we performed ritual service for our ancestors."

"I think the American Thanksgiving is very similar as Korean Thanksgiving even though the foods are different," Lee said. "I especially felt my roommate's family members love each other a lot, and I really felt as though I was a part of their family."

"This was a very special American experience for me. I appreciate everything Jillian's family did for me and really enjoyed it."

a lot of honesty to it. We want to bring back the importance of lyrics."

Though Nick Talbott plans to tour the U.S. next semester, he says his home is Kearney, and he will always have memories from UNK.

"If I could give advice to any student at UNK, I would say to follow your passion and do what you love. The world will tell you that you can't do things but you have to believe that you can."

To learn more about The Talbott Brothers go to: <http://thetalbottbrothers.com/>.

Check online for tickets to upcoming shows.

Place your Graduation Ad in the Antelope!

For more information: antelopeads@unk.edu

RECREATION JOBS!

January-April seasonal positions

- Girls & Boys Basketball Coach ($8.25-9.25 per hour)
- Girls & Boys Basketball Official ($8.25-9.25 per hour)
- Parent/Child Soccer & Baseball Inst. ($8.25-9.25 per hour)
- Adult Volleyball Official ($10.00-12.00 per hour)
- Adult Kickball Umpire ($10.00-12.00 per hour)
- Adult/HS Intramural Basketball Official ($12.00-17.00 per hour)
- League Supervisor ($9.00-11.00 per hour)
- Youth Fitness & Day Camp Instructor ($8.25-9.25 per hour)

Applications available at the Kearney Park and Recreation Office, 2005 1st Avenue, or go to www.cityofkearney.org. The City of Kearney is an equal opportunity employer. Applications received after the deadline will be kept on file.

Great experience for Education, Recreation, Sports Administration, and Exercise Science majors!

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
Monday, December 3
Call 237-4644 for more information.

Get out. Get going! Apply with KPR today!

www.cityofkearney.org

Eyelash extensions are the NEW look!

Eyelash extensions offer an "instant pretty" for any woman who desires for longer, fuller lashes that are weightless and wonderful. Purchase a full set and receive the next refill absolutely free!

Rebekah Flynn Alejandro's Salon
Call or text (308)293-5229 | 5316 W 2nd Ave, Kearney, NE 68845

SELL US YOUR TEXTBOOKS AND
GET MORE BANK
 FOR YOUR BOOK.
 GUARANTEED.

TEXT 'UNK2' TO 22022
 TO GET AN EXTRA $10 WHEN
 YOU SELL $50 IN BOOKS!

Offer valid when you sell back $50 or more. Expires 12/31/2012.
 Not valid with any other offer.

THE COLLEGE STORE

1420 W. 24th St. neebo.com/unk

ANTELOPE BOOKSTORE

1015 W 27th
neebo.com/unk

Powered By Neebo

FIND A BETTER QUOTE AND WE'LL BEAT IT BY 10% — THAT'S OUR BEST PRICE PROMISE.*

*Find it locally or online for higher and we'll beat it in-store by 10%. Excludes peer-to-peer marketplace offerings. Some restrictions apply. See store for details.